Dam advisory vote passes

Davis, Hughes, Heuer win seats on water board

By NANCY HILLS

THE MONTEREY Peninsula Water Management District received a firm directive from peninsula voters Nov. 3 to pursue a dam on the Carmel River. Voters also elected three candidates on the ballot most closely associated with the dam: Paul Davis, James Hughes and Dick Heuer.

Measure D, which asked voters if the district should continue to pursue development of a $44 million reservoir on the Carmel River, received 13,408 yes votes and 7,776 no votes (as of Wednesday morning), despite many people's concern that a dam will promote growth in the area.

The ballot came just before a Nov. 9 water board meeting which will take public comment on the draft environmental impact report on the dam. The board, which will consist of the pre-election members, will meet at 7:30 p.m., Monday, Nov. 9 in Monterey City Council Chambers. The written comment period on the EIR will end Nov. 24.

Monterey architect Davis and Pacific Grove dentist and former city councilman Hughes were the top vote-getters in the water board race for three seats. Their election ousted one of the two incumbents, Patricia Bernardi, running for re-election.

Current board chairman Dick Heuer came in third on the ballot and Bernardi was listed as fourth.

Three board seats were up for election, with one board member, John Williams, deciding not to run again.

Davis, who had come under fire as pro-development, was relieved by the vote.

"I feel very good and I guess kind of vindicated because I was so maligned because of my involvement with development," Davis said.

He added that he was pleased that people were able to "overlook a lot of distorted information" and see him as pro-community rather than pro-development candidate.

Davis had been singled out as representing developers because his profession involved him in the design of hotels on the peninsula and the construction industry had contributed to his and Hughes' campaign.

"I was pleased to see people express themselves on the dam," Hughes said. "The issue of the dam is behind us. Now it's 'What kind of dam do we want?'"

Davis, who ran almost exclusively on getting the dam completed, won 9,216 votes and Hughes, a Pacific Grove resident with a similar agenda, received 9,056.

Heuer came in with 8,715 votes and Bernardi, 7,672.

Carmel City Treasurer Sandra Skillicorn, who was endorsed by peninsula mayors along with Davis and Hughes, came in fifth with 7,199 votes.

Dale Hekhuis, a former chairman of the local chapter of the Sierra Club, came in sixth with 6,969.

Other candidates included Tom May with 2,725 votes. May had opposed the dam and advocated small reservoirs around the peninsula.

Three candidates listed on the ballot as "anti-dam environmentalists" received more than 2,000 votes a piece.

On that slate, Steve Grabinski received 2,725 votes; John Hammond, 2,481; and Michael Bogatirev, a perennial peninsula candidate, received 2,120 votes.

Another candidate, Charles Carter, who dropped out of the race and never campaigned, but was listed on the ballot, received 663 votes.

The 40.9 percent voter turnout in the water district was higher than expected by the Monterey County Office of Elections, which predicted around 30 percent for the off-year election.

The number of absentee ballots, 5,583, ran about average. Some received on Tuesday still must be counted, but the vote will not be officially certified until next week. The county office of elections will also have a breakdown of the vote by city next week.

The number of votes diverted to May and the "anti-dam environmentalists" is blamed by some for putting Davis and Hughes in the lead.

"As I calculate the figures, the candidates concerned about growth got 57 percent of the vote," Heuer said.

That vote was split between seven candidates, he added.

"People who opposed the dam basically threw away votes on extremists who were not serious candidates. That resulted in two pro-growth candidates being elected to the board," Heuer said. "More than one-half of the anti-dam vote went to those candidates who had little chance of winning."

"I think the will of the people in the vote shows the slow-growth and environmental vote outnumber in total the other side," Bernardi said. Bernardi had supported the dam, but only if mitigations included in the project were maintained. She also had expressed concern about the money spent by development interests in the board campaign and on Measure D. She added that she will continue to be involved in water issues on the peninsula.

But May said he felt "Bernardi's and Hekhuis' mistake was they did not come out against the dam."

"I'm very proud of what I accomplished," he added. "I got issues out that needed to be heard."

Hughes said he believed the "issue was the dam and whether you said you were for a dam."

"I'm not saying the other people did a bad job, they just could have moved the process along faster," Hughes said.

"You can make all kinds of 'what ifs' during an election," he added.

"I think it (the vote) showed that people were getting impatient," Davis said. "They wanted to know what to expect."

AS FOR the dam itself, the next big step is compiling the comments on the draft EIR and the district taking the project through the State Water Resources Control Board hearing in April, water district general manager Bruce Buel said.

Samurai cake cutter

WITH A glint in his eyes, Mayor Clint Eastwood took the saber handed to him for the official cake-cutting ceremony and — to the surprise of everyone in attendance — took his best shot at the birthday cake, neatly splitting it in two with a resounding whack. Ceremonies for the city of Carmel's 71st birthday were held at Carpenter Hall after the city's annual Halloween parade down Ocean. A variety of businesses donated food and drink while volunteers kept the tables well stocked and a jazz band played in the background. (Mac McDonald photos.)

United efforts

Dear Editor:

I am writing this letter on behalf of the board of directors of the Monterey Film Festival. We feel that we must reply to the article in the Pine Cone concerning the 1988 festival (Feb. 18-21), for it would appear from its contents that the festival would have a difficult time becoming a reality. I can assure you nothing could be further from the truth.

We now have a good strong board in perfect harmony and agreement as to where the festival is heading. Furthermore, there is no truth to the allegation that a profit company is trying to take over a non-profit company. There are 14 independent, strong-minded members on this board who are united in their efforts to present to Monterey County the best film festival we can possibly produce.

Preserve older homes

Dear Editor:

For several months I have been attempting to locate the old homes in Carmel for the purpose of adding to the history of old Carmel for myself, my family and Carmel Heritage.

This letter is not written on behalf of Carmel Heritage or M.J. Murphy, Inc. as you would presume by the letterhead. This letter is to say there are still offspring of M.J. Murphy interested in preserving as much as possible and practical of old Carmel-by-the-Sea.

M.J. Murphy was one of the pioneers, coming to Carmel in 1902, building the majority of the homes starting in 1904 through 1940. He personally supervised the building through the 1930s, also built a few architect designed homes, and gradually left the supervision to others during the 1940s so he could retire.

I find many of the older homes are being torn down and often a glassed-in museum is built in its place. One week I locate a house and next week I check back on it to try to get the exact lot and block number, only to find it has been torn down.

I realize some of the older homes don't have that much significance for either owners or type of construction of house, yet in early Carmel everyone was as important to the town as everyone else.

This last week I looked at a house on Monte Verde Street. The house was built in 1916, and had been occupied by the same family since 1916. The last family member to live in it must have been a derelict, there was such a collection of debris to clear out. The house has been sold, and to have a house of this character remodeled into anything but what it originally was would be an insult to Carmel.

The interior walls and ceilings are clear all-heart redwood; hardwood floors are perfect but too dirty to see. No unevenness in the floors. To possibly have this house completely changed would be the loss of a landmark. The underpinning is unbelievable considering every bit of the construction was done by hand and is equivalent to present day requirements.

I realize in most of the old houses the kitchens and baths have to be brought up to date. This house cost $3,345 to build in 1916. To compare the above house with a home I looked at on the same day on Casanova:

This house also has been lived in by the same family since its construction some time before the above house. Nothing to speak of has been done to change it from the original construction. It is a beauty with the same clear all-heart redwood ceilings and walls, hardwood floors and fireplace, but a different floor plan. The kitchen and baths have been renewed. A home many of us would give our "eye teeth" to own.

The purpose of my letter, and you must have had a lot of them, is to say isn't it time to look more carefully at the old homes being destroyed and less mansions going up.

Even if an old home is purchased and needs another room or so, keep the old part intact for posterity.

I understand the city of Carmel is considering a preservation element. I heartily support this and hope there will be some control over housing, old and new.

I am not a resident of Carmel now, but we do own property in the center of town.

Parental responsibility

Dear Editor:

If there is one thing we can do wrong as parents, it is to assume that there is someone else who is going to ensure that our children have what they need to succeed.

In our modern age, we have come to rely more and more on others to handle our problems. We are doing this with our children as well.

Few parents have accepted the responsibility to see that their children receive the education that they really need to survive.

From a small self-help booklet titled "The Way To Happiness," is this small piece of advice: "The child will NOT survive well unless he or she eventually becomes self-reliant and VERY moral. Otherwise the end product is likely to be a liability to everyone including the child."

Here is the tragedy of our age — a failure to convey morality (the ability to know right from wrong) to our children. In our most cherished institutions this capability has been replaced by false notions of "anything goes."

But if parents assume responsibility for conveying concepts of right and wrong to children, our institutions and future generations will be themselves strong and capable of surviving.

THE DISTRICT'S second leading vote-getter, Hilton Bialek, says he's pleased with the vote of confidence given to the current board.

PAT HERRO, opted to run for the two-year term because she didn't want to run the risk of the majority of the board coming up for re-election at the same time.

PATRICIA CONDREN agrees with area voters that stability is a good thing to hang on to.

Incumbents retain Carmel school board seats

WITH THE final votes in for the Carmel Unified School District Board of Trustees, it's apparent residents are quite content with the board and want to maintain the status quo.

Of the four seats up for re-election, three have been filled by incumbents.

The trio of four-year term seats show incumbents Hilton Bialek, Patricia Condren and newcomer Gary Gray, while the two-year commitment is filled by incumbent Pat Herro.

According to an unofficial count by the county registrar of voters, Bialek received 5,161 votes; Condren, 5,221 votes; Herro, 4,304 and Gray, 3,731. Losers Michael Shouff received 2,356 votes and Ray Roos 1,437 votes.

"I'm pleased at the vote of confidence," Bialek said. "I'm looking forward to working with Gary Gray — he's going to give the board some skills we don't have."

Gray is an attorney.

All is quiet in the district that has maintained a mellow profile since being rocked by a recall election in 1985. At that time three board members were recalled after the approved of the firing of popular superintendent Bill Rand.

Bialek and Herro were both voted in during that election.

Several months later the district hired Bob Infelise as superintendent. Things have remained calm ever since.

Gray, with two children enrolled in CUSD, said he is glad to come aboard.

"I am just terribly excited about assuming this responsibility," he said. "I look forward to working with other members of the board and staff whom I admire."

Echoing voter sentiment was Condren, the leading vote-getter.

"We've got good programs started and were going to pursue this," she said. "We think that stability is a fine thing."

Spencers relocation receives approval from council

By DAVID LELAND

TO THE delight of many and the dismay of a few, the Carmel City Council Tuesday unanimously reversed a Carmel Planning Commission decision which had denied a master use permit for Spencers Stationery.

Originally Spencers owner Jim Dougherty had applied for a use permit for his new store, now located in the central commercial district, into the Court of the Golden Bough, which is zoned residential commercial.

At the planning commission level there was bitter opposition regarding speculation on whether Spencers was trying to expand its business by manipulating the floor space at its new store.

The new location has a third floor, which under the land-use code cannot be used for commercial purposes, Dougherty sought to take that space and add it onto the first floor.

In doing that, however, he exceeded the total amount of floor area allowed in the land-use plan, which created an additional non-conformity.

On Oct. 14, the planning commission split 3-3 on the extent to which a total floor area non-conformity could be corrected and without a majority vote the permit was denied.

The council, from the very beginning, has been in favor of keeping Spencers downtown, calling it a "resident-oriented business."

And while certain members of the planning commission were in favor of that proposition, they also believed that Dougherty's request did not fit in with the city's land-use code.

In overturning the planning commission's decision, the city council will now also assume jurisdiction over the design review.

Part of the council's reasoning appeared to be based on the amount of time it has taken for Dougherty to work through the process.

"I'm dismayed that this project has been delayed so long for minor, minor reasons," said Councilman Bob Fischer.

But for Planning Commissioner Howard Nieman, who voted to deny any expansion at the new location, his reasons were not "minor" — he was merely trying to enforce the city's law.

"I think that when the council overrules the planning commission they should do so only when the commission has erred in making the decision of applying the general plan or the land-use code," he said.

For Councilman Jim Wright, the decision was a little more difficult than for other councilmembers.

"I'm beginning to think I'm the only one in the county who's had any trouble deciding this," he said, adding that he's talked to people on each side of the issue.

Wright said that after balancing all of the issues he decided that allowing Spencers to go ahead would be the best choice — but he still had reservations on allowing one business to stretch the rules.

BEFORE THIS week's city council meeting, councilmembers toured the new site for Spencers Stationery in the Court of the Golden Bough. Here, councilmembers (from

"I really think we make a mistake when we advise special zoning for a business," he said.

Mayor Clint Eastwood, who spent many hours before the previous city council attempting to secure a permit for his store on San Carlos Street, was a staunch supporter of the measure.

"Having been in this position before, I'm going to refrain from commenting," he said sarcastically before the vote.

In order to bypass the current zoning ordinance for the new location, the council adopted regulations that Dougherty must follow.

Square footage was set for the first and second floors, with the first floor occupying more space than the second.

The second floor can be added onto if the first floor is reduced, but the combined coverage can never exceed 1,181 square feet.

Council approves EIR for Louise Bennett property

By DAVID LELAND

DESPITE PROTESTS by an attorney representing the Louise Bennett property, the Carmel City Council this week approved an environmental impact report that lopped four lots from the proposed development.

Attorney George Brehmer argued for more than an hour during the 2½-hour hearing that his client should be able to "rotate" one of the lots, which would prevent possible flooding downstream.

The Bennett property is located between

Second and Third avenues and San Carlos and Dolores streets.

The EIR adopted by the council says the 48,000-square foot lot is part of a major drainage system that begins in Carmel Woods and extends to Carmel Beach.

With that in mind, there is a natural flow of water that would be changed if too much development is allowed.

Originally subdivided into 14 lots for single-family homes, the number was then reduced to 12 and then changed to eight.

Last month the Carmel Planning Commission recommended one lot be eliminated, the ravine realigned through two other lots and the development of one lot be subject to controls.

In the end, the amount of conflicting testimony by experts for the city and Bennett only further clouded the issue, according to Councilman Bob Evans.

Evans suggested to the council that the two sides get together and try to work out a solution which would allow building on the property to begin.

But other councilmembers had had enough talk and wanted to get things underway.

"I'm not really so optimistic that anything can be accomplished by experts," said Councilman Jim Wright. "I heard them say just the opposite tonight — I didn't hear any hedging."

Before the vote, a petition was presented by 32 residents calling for the preservation of 60 trees on the property and suggesting that the city compensate Bennett for not selling the lots, leaving them in a natural state.

Councilwoman Elinor Laiolo was not seated on the council for the Bennett issue because she owns property downstream and believed that presented a potential conflict of interest for her.

Mayor Clint Eastwood, Wright and Councilman Bob Fischer voted for approval of the EIR, while Evans abstained from approving the document.

Planners ponder when jewelry is really jewelry

By NANCY HILLS

IF YOU think you're confused now, you should have been at the Carmel Planning Commission meeting Oct. 28.

It was a no-win situation for both commissioners and applicants when two applications for spaces in the same building with a request to increase commercial space were presented, amended, defended and reprimanded.

The commission may have found that situation akin to juggling water balloons, but it had been primed before by an amazing verbal shell game performed by attorney Hugo Gerstl, who defended his client's application for a use permit by stating her application for a costume jewelry store was not for a jewelry store.

Rhinestones are glass, Gerstl stated, so they don't come under the jewelry store classification.

"I don't think anyone would say this is fine jewelry," Gerstl said, holding up a rhinestone bear his client had created. "It's more like what you'd find sold in Sprouse-Reitz."

Gerstl's client, Galina Pulwers Thorn, spoke very little English, she told the commission. She was applying to occupy an empty shop space on Lincoln Street between Ocean and Seventh avenues.

The staff recommended denial on the basis that the general plan states a proposed use should not conflict with the city's goal of maintaining a balanced mix of uses that serve the needs of both the local and visitor population.

There are 29 jewelry stores in town already, the staff wrote, two or three times the number of jewelry stores per capita than in any other peninsula community.

Irrelevant, Gerstl claimed, and the staff's report — meaning no disrespect, he added — was "erroneous, sloppy and wrong" because her store was "in no way conceivably a jewelry store." It will sell costume jewelry.

"She will deal solely and exclusively in rhinestones," he said, adding later that maybe it should be classified as a glass store because rhinestones are made out of the same material as beer bottles.

The commission, however, found it agreed with the staff and denied the permit.

"You can appeal to the city council," Chairman Ken White told Gerstl.

"Of course, and you know we will, all the way through the process," Gerstl answered.

TWO OTHER applications became embroiled in controversy over commercial space expansion and a complete remodel of the building where the shops would be located.

The commission, rather than grant the two use permits in a piecemeal process, asked that the landlord apply for a master use permit which reviews the entire structure.

Carmel Planning Director Diane White told the commission that staff had recommended a master use permit to the landlords six weeks ago because of the complexity of the building and the number of changes they planned for the internal structure. The landlords had decided against the procedure because they felt it was unnecessary, she said.

Two businesses, Flying Colors and Hawaiian Cotton, applied to replace Fouratt-Simmons Real Estate and Bernadine's children's store, respectively, located in the Jorgenson Building on the north side of Ocean Avenue between Lincoln and Dolores streets. Bernadine's may be moving to the Sixth Street side of the building.

Both applications asked for almost double the commercial space currently in the two areas by remodeling square footage now used for storage into public floor space.

Expanding commercial space violates Carmel's water conservation ordinance.

Attorney Robert Buck, representing himself and others as owners of the building, told the commission that they had plans to remodel and change the configuration of the commercial spaces within the structure.

The decision was further complicated by a use permit for Realtor Barbara Simmons, owner of Fouratt-Simmons Real Estate, who is in the process of buying a building in the Court of the Golden Bough where she plans to relocate her office.

The commission in September granted

Simmons a use permit to occupy the new office only if her present location on Ocean Avenue is no longer rented as a real estate office.

To allow both to be used as real estate offices would increase the number of real estate offices on Ocean Avenue, which is against the general plan's direction for the main street.

THE COMMISSIONERS told Simmons in September that if she could get a waiver from the property owners stating they would not rent her present Ocean Avenue space to another real estate firm, it would be satisfied and her new permit would take effect.

The waiver is necessary because up to six months after a business vacates a location, another business just like it can move in without the commission granting a permit.

That rule applies until another use permit for a different type of business is granted and the business occupies the space or a waiver is signed. Either action would "break the chain," as it was called during the meeting.

Simmons told the commissioners in the September meeting she had an optometrist lined up to rent her space, so that would interrupt the six-month timeline.

However, when Simmons presented the landlord — Buck and his partners — with her tenant, she was informed that property owners had an optometrist of their own to move into the Sixth Street side of the building, so it was not possible to move in her tenant.

Nor would they sign a paper waiving rental to another real estate office, Simmons informed the commission at the Oct. 28 meeting.

"The landlords have already indicated to me they will not sign that letter," she said.

Buck affirmed that judgment, stating that there were so many owners of the building, they would not agree to such an action.

Simmons' concerns brought Flying Colors' use permit immediately back before the commission, right after it had voted to have the building come under a master use permit and the applications reviewed then.

Simmons asked the commission to reconsider the permit and address her problem by ruling on the use permit for Flying Colors. Simmons told the commission she needed to know where she stood because her escrow is closing Nov. 15.

If Flying Colors gets approval and moves into her current office space, it would terminate the space being used as a real estate office. She could then move into her new building.

Photographs of a Flying Colors' shop in the San Francisco Bay Area showed a shop that sold cotton sportswear such as shirts, pants, sweatshirts and exercise outfits.

"It looks like it could be another T-shirt shop to me," Commissioner Fred Keeble said after looking at the photographs.

The commission also was not willing to expand the commercial floor space, but indicated it would vote on the use permit for the current floor space — no expansion.

However, it was unknown whether the owner of Flying Colors would accept that condition because he was not in attendance at the meeting.

Don Bowen of Carmel Business Sales, speaking for Flying Colors, said he would amend the application on the spot to eliminate the request for increased floor space area.

With that, three commissioners — Olof Dahlstrand, Bill Brown and Ed Hicks — voted to approve the use permit.

Commissioners Fred Keeble, Howard Nieman and Carla Ramsey voted against approval of the permit, primarily because they felt it would "piecemeal" the process. All the use permits for the building should be reviewed under the master use permit process which the commission already had requested.

Hawaiian Cotton, represented by attorney James Heisinger with the owner present, also said he would amend the application right at the meeting but it was not unanimously turned down by the commission. Hawaiian Cotton would take the place of Bernadine's Children's Shop, which may move to the Sixth Street side of the building.

Council approves concept of Pine Inn parking

ALSO ON the Nov. 3 agenda of the Carmel City Council were the following issues:

- An appeal of a Carmel Planning Commission decision which denied amending the use permit for Landell Studios and also revoked its business license.

The planning commission had told Landell Studio owners they could not operate an art store in Carmel, but in September commissioners found that that store had indeed been selling art pieces on a commission basis and revoked its license.

The problem for Landell owners Ginna Landes and Susan Blondell is that by the time the issue came before the council their store was out of business.

After reading an impassioned plea for leniency to the council, councilmembers were unclear what good it would do to give them back their license when they were no longer in business.

"I don't know what we're supposed to act on under these circumstances," said Mayor Clint Eastwood.

The law, according to City Atty. Don Freeman, states that the council needs to act only on what the facts are the day of the hearing.

"It's a moot issue because there is no business," he said.

Before the issue was decided, longtime resident Jim Holliday, who is also president of the Carmel Residents Association, reprimanded the council for constantly overturning planning commission decisions.

Eastwood and the council bristled at the prospect of the appeal process being stifled. Eastwood added that he refuses to be a "rubber stamp" for the planning commission.

The council unanimously denied the request to amend the use permit for that building and rendered the compliance issue moot.

- The council approved (4-1, with Councilman Jim Wright dissenting), an amendment to the general plan that allows a public/private parking garage to be located at Sixth Avenue and Monte Verde Street in conjunction with the Pine Inn.

That area is currently zoned residential.

Many residents objected to the offer, which calls for the garage to be built at no expense to the city by the Pine Inn.

"I'm very much concerned about a general plan amendment that has the potential to change the skyline of Carmel," said resident Barbara Brooks. "This feels to me like a major change in philosophy."

Another resident, Fenn Horton, told the council that he interprets the general plan to say that any excess land should be used for senior citizen housing.

That city-owned land was originally slated for the Harrison Memorial Library Annex, which would have also housed a parking garage with the Pine Inn. The annex is now housed in the old Crocker Bank building.

Wright objected to amending the general plan because that was not the reason the voters approved the purchase of the lots in the first place. He questioned whether residents would have bought the land for the city if a parking garage had been slated for the land.

- The council continued until its Dec. 8 meeting a request from Roscelli Corp. for a 6.5 percent rate increase for commercial and residential garbage pick-up.

Under this request the bill for a private user with one garbage can would climb from $5.40 to $5.75 per month, while a two-yard container for a business would inch up from $54.75 a month to $58.30.

- Received a report from the Mission Trail Park Consortium regarding the Flanders Mansion, which recommends against selling the estate and suggests fixing it up.

The council gave the consortium a one-year grace period to review how its goal can be accomplished and to come before it with a specific proposal which focuses on one use.

- Appointed a committee composed of Councilwoman Elinor Laiolo, architect Alan Williams and Ed Lee to come up with a response to the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District's draft environmental impact report for the New San Clemente Dam.

The city planning staff presented a similar report to the council at Tuesday's meeting, but after discussion it was decided that a committee should redo the report.

- The council approved funds for three non-profit organizations.

The Pacific Grove Marine Rescue Patrol ($5,000); Monterey County Film Festival ($500) and the Carmel Music Boosters Club ($10,000).

- The next city council meeting is set for Dec. 8, which is the second Tuesday rather than the first Tuesday.

Two new members elected to water district board

After the hearing, the district will issue a certified EIR then, if all goes smoothly, conduct a bond election in the spring or fall of 1989, Buel said.

The bond election will authorize the district to build the dam, while the Nov. 3 vote was simply a non-binding "poll" of peninsula residents' feelings on the project.

The board may decide to conduct the geophysical studies concurrently with those hearings, a process that could shave about six months off the timeline, Buel said.

Both Hughes and Davis indicated that might be the way they want to go.

"I think we are going to look at as many things that can run concurrently," Hughes said, a position Davis had also taken during the campaign.

"I want to better understand the process now and getting the dam through — lay out the format," Davis said. "I don't want to rush anything foolishly."

Davis added he felt there are some "serious problems with the growth projections" in the draft EIR which should be updated and presented in a manner that is easily comprehensible so "it can't be distorted."

"I think growth is a very, very big issue and I think that we could do a better job of handling it in a simpler manner," he added.

Misconceptions, such as 70 percent of the water will go to hotels and the commercial district, need to be changed, he said.

Heuer, as a member of the board who put together the EIR, said there "may have some battles ahead of us to protect the river environment from more water being taken out for development."

The first problem will be the request by the cities to increase pumping in order to get a larger allocation, increase the amount of water from the dam for growth and California-American Water Co.'s request for more wells in the upper Carmel Valley before the reservoir is built.

The passage of Measure D, Heuer added, "showed what we thought all along. People voted for more water and feel we have an urgent need for a water supply project. That feeling was very, very strong."

Planning staff has also prepared a reformatting of the document as directed by the commissioners, which will be discussed by the commission.

Sandy state of affairs

OVERALL WINNERS (right) of the Great Sand Castle Contest of Carmel received their "Grand Sand Award" — a gold-plated shovel — for their entry, "The Iran-Contra Connection" at last weekend's annual event. Winning the top prize were: Norman Strampach, John Tessman, Carolyn Hoener, Jerry Momoda, Rich Osugi and David O'Brien. Their sculpture depicted moneybags stretching from Iran to the White House to Nicaragua. Contest judges (center) Marvin Guillermo, Jean Grace and Ted Larson walked back and forth on Carmel Beach with the grand prize (fooling quite a few contestants), until finally arriving at the winner's site, more than 100 onlookers in tow. Meanwhile, members of "The Sons of the Beaches" led by captain, Charlie Lunt, proudly displayed their "Advanced Sand Box" award, which they won for the hear-no-evil etc. monkeys chained together entitled: "The Truth Shall Set You Free." The event, held Sunday, again proved to be quite popular despite the overcast, windy weather. (Mac McDonald photos.)

Jewelry, store expansion tops planners' agenda

The commission decided to conduct a land use committee meeting next week to discuss the building and Simmons' situation.

IN AN interview with The Carmel Pine Cone after the meeting, Chairman White said he felt that "the planning commission was asked to solve a problem that is basically the landlord's problem."

"That's not an area for the planning commission," he said.

The landlord was previously asked to submit a master use permit that would have shown the commission where all the changes in the building were to take place, White said, and it had been their choice not to go that route.

White said he felt "very terrible" about Simmons situation but the conditions on her use permit were "put on over a month ago."

"We had no idea that there would be a request to increase floor space," White said.

The landlord should be able to solve her problem, he added.

"The machinations of some attorneys representing applicants do nothing but muddy the waters for the planning commission," he said. If that continues, White said, "I feel strongly that the people of Carmel are going to lose."

Middle school parents provide sound foundation

By DAVID LELAND

THIS WEEK'S The Pine Cone continues its profile of parent support groups within the Carmel Unified School District.

Without these valuable organizations many extra activities and educational aids would vanish from the schools because of a limited budget.

All support groups are composed of volunteers and help fund programs by membership dues and fund-raising events.

This week The Pine Cone will take a look at the Parent Faculty Club at Carmel Middle School.

First off, don't let the fact that there are only 200 members fool you, the PFC is stronger than ever, especially when the need arises.

"I've never had a parent tell me 'no,' says Joyce Olcese, PFC president, referring to the numerous tasks she solicits. "To be a successful PFC you have to have the support of everyone — and we have!"

For parents unable to attend the 9 a.m. PFC meeting held the first Thursday of the month in the library of the middle school, that information is sent home in a newsletter.

"We find that that's the way to get the information home," she says. "If the parents don't read it at least it's there."

The PFC also sends home a questionnaire, which asks parents in what capacity they could become involved in the club's activities.

This year Olcese says the PFC's budget stands between $10,000 and $12,000, of which some is already earmarked.

Among the programs that are slated to receive money from the PFC are: music, which will receive sheet music and instrument repair; computer, which will be given software and a new viewer; language arts; science; school mailings, such as report cards; the graduation ceremony and the annual Christmas party.

*That's not to say the buck stops there, even though that's more than enough.

"As requests come in from teachers," she says, "we will fund throughout the year."

Parents may file applications for children under 18 years of age. Children over 18 must file their own application.

The following documents must be presented when filing the application: the child's certified or original birth certificate or hospital birth record; a piece of identification for the child such as an immunization record, library card or school report card; and some identification for the parent. For children born outside of the United States, the parents must provide proof of citizenship or lawful admission.

FOUNTAIN GOING UP, FUND GOING DOWN

The Soldier Memorial is going up, but the contribution of funds to complete it are at a standstill. Since the last report $12.50 has been contributed — five by the Berkey family, five by R.M. Alden and two-fifty by Mrs. S. B. Hunkins. Many give excuses for not contributing. We lack $157 of the one thousand dollars said to be needed. It would be a shame to have the last two stones left off for the need of a small sum.

Some do not like the design; others do not like the way it is being managed; there are those who think that it should have been done by contract, and possible there are some who do not favor the idea of a memorial at all.

There may be an element of justice in all the criticisms, but ever since the first stone was laid it became a job to be finished. The time to protest was when the project was launched.

HUMANITY'S LAST GREAT PLAGUE

The war against the social diseases, humanity's last great plague, was brought home to Carmel at the Forum lecture Tuesday evening at Sunset auditorium. The speakers was Dr. Russell V. Lee, president of the American Society for the Control of Venereal Diseases. Only an aroused public interest, Dr. Lee stressed, is needed for the stamping out of these diseases, for research has made the methods available. Great reluctance of the public to look unpleasant facts in the face has resulted in a conspiracy of silence against these diseases. And as a result they have become far more wide spread than the average person dreams. Only measles, Dr. Lee said, is more prevalent than syphilis and gonorrhoea.

HIGHWAY ONE TO BYPASS CAMBRIA

Construction and realignment of State Highway One to bypass Cambria in San Luis Obispo County will get under way shortly.

Bids will be opened November 14 in Sacramento. Actual work should begin early in December, depending upon when the contract is awarded to the qualified low bidder.

The 4.3 mile Highway One project will consist of grading and paving to construct a two-lane expressway on new alignment about 1.5 miles south of San Simeon Creek. The new route will bypass Cambria on the west and will skirt Cambria Pines Manor. Two new bridges will be constructed over Santa Rosa Creek one of the bridges for the county of San Luis Obispo with county funds.

Completion of the project is expected about September, 1963, barring unforeseen obstacles.

COUNCIL GETS ADVICE ON OUSTING COMMISSIONERS

A detailed method by which the Carmel City Council could oust its appointed commission members has been submitted for a council vote on Monday.

No city commissioners ever have been removed from the non-pay posts, said City Attorney George Brehmer, but the council's power over the commission needs to be clarified. There is no ordinance in Carmel that explains how a commissioner can be ousted.

The ordinance also spells out when a commissioner could be removed for being a nonresident. A move of a member's residence causing less than a majority of the commission to be residents of Carmel would lead to member's ouster under the proposed ordinance.

CARMEL RIVER DAM COSTS SKYROCKET

A new dam on the upper Carmel River will cost $11.5 million more than originally estimated, according to the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District.

Water District manager Bruce Buel is to present the board of directors with updated cost estimates for a 27,000 ac. ft. reservoir on the Carmel River Monday, Nov. 8, in Monterey City Council chambers at 7:30 p.m.

Buel said he will present revised cost estimates in four areas related to the proposed dam which boost the total price tag from the original estimate of $77.5 million to $89 million in 1985 dollars.

Michelle Clark benefit to feature music, food

ALTHOUGH WELL on her way to physical recovery, Michelle Clark of Carmel Valley is still trying to maneuver down a rough road financially.

With that in mind her friends and fellow employees have banded together to present a benefit party for her to help raise funds for her enormous medical bills.

Clark, an employee of The Carmel Pine Cone and The Cheese Shop in Carmel Plaza, lost a leg in an auto accident on Carmel Valley Road July 22. Subsequently — without benefit of medical insurance — her bills soared to almost $40,000. A recent fund-raising drive netted several thousand dollars, but fell short of the goal necessary for continuing physical therapy and new artificial limbs.

The latest event is slated for 7 to 11 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 5, at the Mission Ranch Barn in Carmel. Entertainment on tap will include Irish folk group Sam Shuttleworth's Amazing Steam Band, bluegrass from Home Fire, and dance rock from Monterey's Floating Mission.

A $10 admission to the event will not only include the live entertainment, but beer, wine, soft drinks and a wide variety of hors d'oeuvres. Some hors d'oeuvres trays will feature several cheeses from The Cheese Shop. Wines include those from Durney, Cotturi, Jekel and Talbott.

Local businesses donating food and/or beverages at press time include Flaherty's, Invisible Chef, Your Maitre'd, Albertsons, Cloris' Croissants, Sparolini Distributing and Ventana Vineyards. Door prizes will also be awarded during the evening.

Advance tickets are available at the Pine Cone office, Sixth and San Carlos, upstairs, or at The Cheese Shop in the lower level of Carmel Plaza. Tickets may also be available at the door on the day of the event. For more information call 624-0162 or 625-2272.

DOLLARS & SENSE

By Anthony Piazza & Marshall Bloom

What if

WHAT IF we turned off the news and became totally indifferent to stock market swings, record crashes and all?

What if we designed a strategy that was based on all the sensible advice one could develop from a conservative point-of-view?

First, we'd want to invest in quality. No matter what happens, you can't beat quality.

Second, we'd want to invest unemotionally. We won't be able to pick market tops or bottoms. We'll do it on artificial basis perhaps, on a certain date every year, one hundred shares of that quality stock of our choice.

Where would we be today, with the stock market down 30 percent in the last two months, if we had followed such a strategy?

On your behalf, dear readers of the Monterey Peninsula, we made some crude, but worthwhile investigations. We took a page at random from a long list of actively traded stocks. On that page we decided to choose any two stocks with the longest record of paying dividends. If these stocks were rated less than A for financial strength by Standard and Poor's, we threw them out.

What did we come up with using this mechanical method?

On our random page we found Pinnacle West Capital, the holding company for Arizona Public Service, and Pillsbury.

Remember, these were chosen on an artificial basis for quality: they treat their shareholders right by paying dividends through good times and bad, and they keep their financial house in order as evidenced by their high S&P rating.

Next, let's assume that you brought 100 shares of each stock on the average price for each of the last 10 years.

You would have invested $21,990 in Pinnacle West and $18,665 in Pillsbury.

Your current annual return for Pinnacle would be 12.6 percent on your capital; your return on Pillsbury would be 5.2 percent.

Your dollars in Pinnacle would have grown to $27,625 and your total dollars collected in dividends over the 10 years would have been $13,995.00, yours to spend or reinvest.

Your Pillsbury investment would have grown to $34,000 and a total of $3,274 in dividends would have been yours to redirect during the past decade.

So? What's the point? Only this: there is no substitute for a program when you get into the market.

Winners in the market never ask, when should I get in or get out?

You'd be a winner, with the market down several hundred points, if you had opted for quality and practiced patience.

By the way, it's never too late.

(Messrs. Piazza and Bloom, associate vice presidents at Dean Witter Reynolds Inc., can be contacted for additional information, at 373-1861 or P.O. Box 631, Monterey 93940.)

Blood pressure should be lowered

High blood pressure adds to the work-load of the heart and arteries, which may contribute to stroke, heart attack, kidney failure, and congestive heart failure. There is accumulating evidence that lowering blood pressure reduces the risk of stroke and coronary heart disease, according to the American Heart Association.

Knowledge of CPR could save lives

MORE THAN 70 percent of all CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) rescues occur in the home on an individual known by the rescuer.

Statistics show that more than 650,000 people in the United States died from heart attacks in 1986 and that heart disease is the leading cause of death in Monterey County.

On the other hand CPR saves more than 250 lives a day; the more people that know CPR, the more lives that can be saved.

With that in mind the Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross offers CPR classes twice a month all year. The following classes are offered:

- Saturday, Nov. 7, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

- Monday and Wednesday, Nov. 16 and 18, from 6 to 10 p.m.

• Saturday, Dec. 12, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Classes are held at the Carmel Red Cross house at Eighth and Dolores. Classes include demonstrations and teaching of the Heimlich maneuver. Cost is $15 for the eight-hour class. A certificate will be presented upon completion.

For more information call the Red Cross at 624-6921.

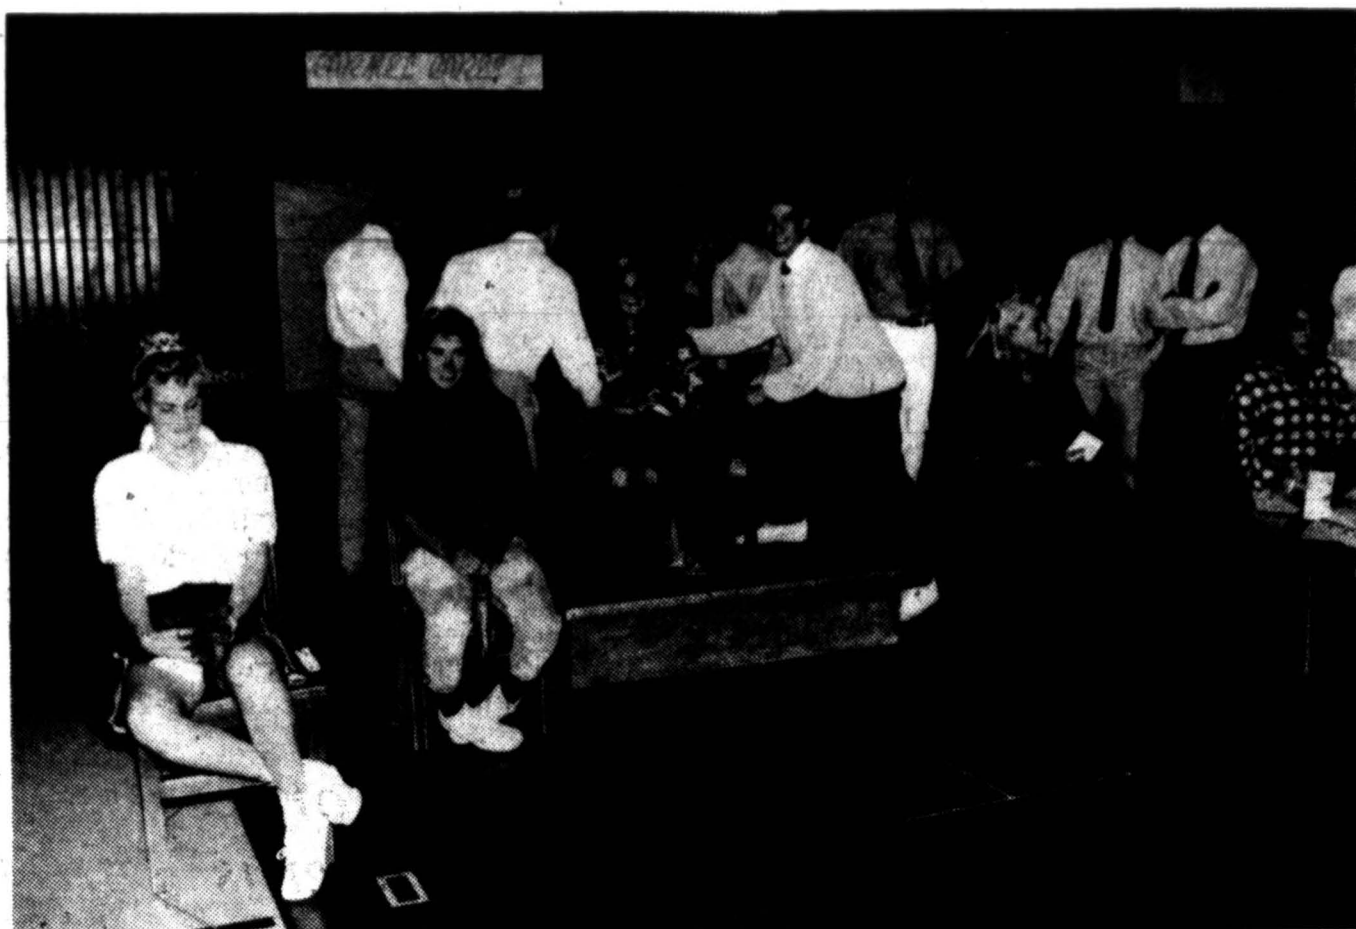

Carmel Youth Center reveals new hours

THE CARMEL Youth Center has revealed fall and winter hours for the upcoming school year.

The center will be open Monday through Friday 3 to 8 p.m. and on Saturday from noon to 8 p.m.

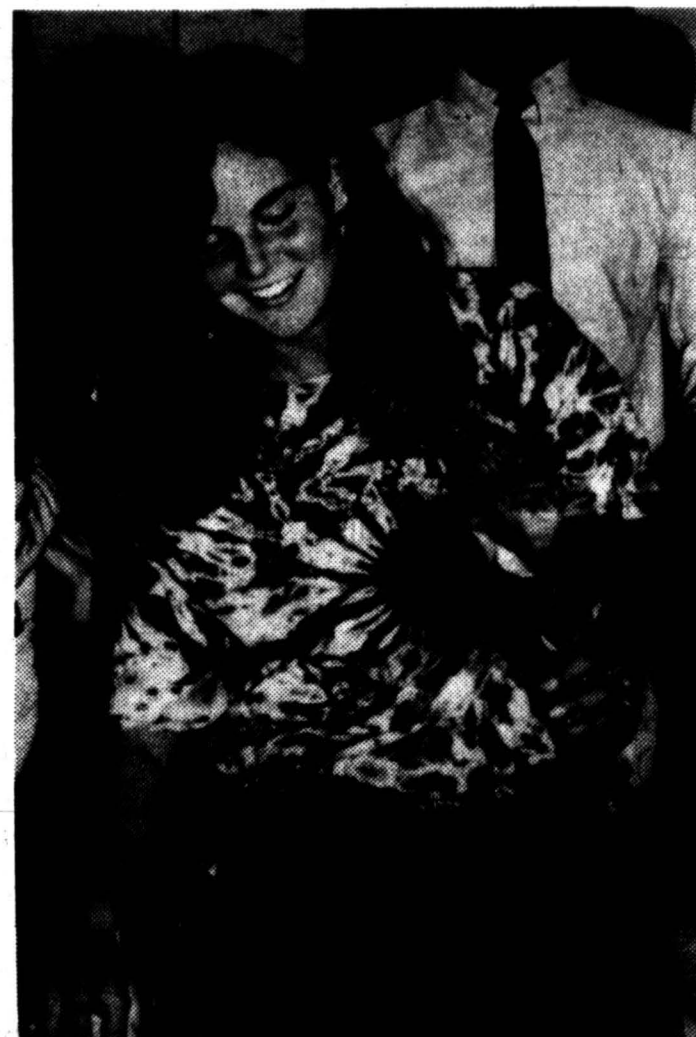

The Carmel Youth Center, a drop-in center for middle school and high school students, is located at Fourth Avenue and Torres Street. The Center includes activities such as ping-pong, billiards, video games, basketball, badminton, large screen TV and a snack bar that prepares hot sandwiches, hamburgers and other types of food.

In addition to the center is the new weight room that is available to students 13-18 years old. The weight room has both Nautilus-type machine weights and free weights. Also, exercise bicycles and a Lifecycle are available for aerobic training.

Carmel High sees red when it comes to drugs

By DAVID LELAND

FOR MOST people a red ribbon signifies a second-place finish, but for some local students and teachers the crimson banner denotes a complete success.

During Red Ribbon Week, a statewide program celebrated at Carmel High School and Carmel Middle School last week, participants pinned a small red ribbon on their lapel while swearing off drugs and alcohol.

At the high school about 105 students and 20 teachers took part in the program, signing contracts stating their intent. Students vowed to refrain from consumption, while staff said they wouldn't abuse alcohol.

High school officials were happy with the seemingly small turnout of participants, with only about 1/8 of the 750 students registered at the school taking part.

Sophomore-junior counselor Lynn Archer said some students, who were already not taking substances, declined to take part in the program because they felt it unnecessary.

Students could either pledge for themselves or together with a friend — call it the buddy system.

"Considering it's the first time we've done this we're getting a pretty good response," said senior Clarissa Burkman, who is also a Peer Counselor. "I haven't had any negative feedback (from other students)."

Burkman added that she knew of two students who were using drugs and alcohol that decided to give abstinence a try.

"Kids are trying to encourage others to make the commitment," she said. "It's not that hard to go through the week on a natural high."

Initiated locally by the Community Counseling Center in Monterey under the umbrella of Californians Against Drugs For Youth, the program is being practiced from grade schools up to the college level within the state.

THE SITUATION is a little tamer at the middle school, where the staff is more concerned with teaching students about the concept of a drug-free society.

"It's more symbolic here," said counselor Donna Alonzo. "We'd like to think we don't have a problem with that (student drug use) right now."

Just about all of the 425 students are wearing red ribbons reading "The choice for me...drug free" to show support for temperance. They are taught to use nicotine, alcohol and caffeine in moderation and no illegal drugs whatsoever.

All students have been spending their daily 30-minute "enrichment" period discussing the perils of drug abuse.

In addition to discussion, the students have been expressing their thoughts on the subject by writing poetry. An example:

*Must be careful cannot pop
too close to the sun down to the ground I drop Children below
red ribbons I see smiling with happiness
ecstatically...*

Sara Wise, eighth-grade

To top off Red Ribbon Week at the middle school 26 balloons were launched — there are 26 enrichment classes — in an effort to let the community know what is possible.

Attached to each red balloon, donated by the Balloon Hut, was a short message which read: "This red balloon was launched by our school in support of a drug-free society as part of Red Ribbon Week, Oct. 25-31. Please write to us if you should find it and let us know your location."

LAST WEEK, during Red Ribbon Week, students and staff at Carmel High School signed contracts to abstain from abusing alcohol and drugs. Here (from left) counselor

CARMEL HERITAGE

By Betty Barron

Passing the torch

CAN YOU picture Ocean Avenue with rutted car tracks and only a few scattered buildings standing forlornly on rough sand-strewn earth? Could you have visualized the potential of this steep street running down to the even steeper sandy embankment above Carmel Bay?

Most of those who came to Carmel in those early years were seeking a peaceful retreat to write or paint or meditate. They settled into small "board and battens." They pursued their artistic careers and left a legacy that enriches all our lives today.

But, a few who came in the mid 20s began to build in another dimension. They could envision the beauty of Carmel as a backdrop for charming homes and businesses.

Such were the Stantons...Robert Stanton, Architect, F.A.I.A., and his vivacious and talented wife, Virginia.

The Stantons acquired their first property on the corner of Ocean and Monte Verde, a two-story Victorian house with rental units. To make room for Robert Stanton's small office, a building already occupying the corner of Ocean and Lincoln Avenue, the old Victorian was moved back on the property off Monte Verde.

As Virginia Stanton says, "What a day that was...moving day!"

It is not difficult to imagine the problems, using primitive equipment as compared to our present-day facilities for such a venture. However, the Stantons succeeded. And, their building program began.

One of the first in Carmel to build with the extensive use of glass, Robert Stanton constructed the chalkrock building on the corner of Ocean and Monte Verde, now occupied by Rittmasters. The glass terrace is still one of the most attractive in Carmel.

Practical as well as innovative, Stanton then designed and built ten motel units in French Provincial style on the lots behind, shaded by liquid amber trees, circling a lovely patio. A bit later, two lots on Casanova were purchased, including the original board and batten cottages, now redesigned as Normandy cottages with a graceful serpentine wall enclosing a sunny patio. The complex became unified under the Stantons' deft touch. The entire block began to resemble a little village within the village of Carmel.

There was one property remaining which was to complete the complex, the corner of Casanova and Ocean Avenue, which was purchased a few years later. This larger lot provided the Stantons with the inspiration for the impressive French Provincial building flanking the reception lounge and office for the present-day Normandy Inn. Behind this large building the Stantons built a garden swimming pool and another large cottage. The effect then, as today, is one of warmth, seclusion, a setting for relaxation and contemplation. It is a haven for visitors to Carmel.

ROBERT STANTON was the architect and inspiration for the design of the buildings. The irrepressible Virginia Stanton, a decorator par excellence, and responsible for the gracious accents and interior designing, is still very much an active force in our community.

She has been instrumental in the burgeoning Carmel Heritage society, giving over her post as president this past month at a delightful dinner meeting at her home in Carmel Valley. Immediately following this annual meeting and election of Carmel Heritage board members, Virginia jetted off to Thailand to be present at the festivities for the king's birthday party.

Her message to all Carmelites: "Onward and upward with Carmel Heritage!"

Incoming president of Carmel Heritage, Roger Newell, spoke briefly as he took over the gavel from outgoing president, Virginia.

I think her message should be heard by everyone who loves Carmel and is interested in the future of our community.

Roger Newell: "We share a common concern in Carmel Heritage. We want to search out and identify the people, places and events that make up Carmel's rich historic and cultural inheritance. We want to develop appropriate ways in which to collect, protect, and display the artifacts and resources which constitute Carmel's historic treasures for the enrichment of all.

"To this end, as a member and now, for a season as president of Carmel Heritage, I shall encourage the important role our committees have to play in being the channels through which the interests, energies and talents of our membership can flow. The strength of our organization is in its committees with its officers and board in support, facilitating and expediting roles.

"We will continue to pursue those projects that bring focus upon our identity as a community. As our understanding of our roots grows, so will our ability as a community grow, to effectively engage and constructively guide our future. I hope all who share these interests will join us."

Guide Dogs' Western party

JAMES (MARSHALL Dillon) Arness, Kim Novak, Doris Day and Allen Funt did not show up for the California barbecue given at Hidden Valley by the Monterey County Committee for Guide Dogs for the Blind. That is their loss. However, the handsome Westerner pictured on the "Wanted" flier with a red-kerchiefed dog, did come. He is Donald Rossi, president of Guide Dogs for the Blind, San Rafael.

A bit of history: Guide Dogs in California began in 1942 when servicemen blinded in WWII found no facilities in the western United States to provide them with needed guide dogs. Five women volunteers in San Francisco banded together and founded Guide Dogs for the Blind. In 1947, headquarters were moved to San Rafael and by 1980 there was more expansion. Dogs are trained five to six months by a team of instructors which includes training in residential and heavily trafficked areas. Many of the dogs are raised by 4-H members who begin the training in the 12 to 14 months they have them before they are taken to the San Rafael finishing school for preparation to be given as "gifts of sight" to those who need them.

Now, about the Western party last Sunday afternoon. Hidden Valley theater was appropriately decorated with Guide Dogs paintings around the wall, interspersed with horseshoe wind-chimes on ribbons. The tables held pumpkins filled with fall flowers from Kitty Ragsdale's garden. As decorations chairwoman, Kitty tied dog biscuits onto the floral arrangements and placed Guide Dog silhouettes in Western hats and scarves nearby. Guests dined on Western barbecue culinary art of Hidden Valley chefs. Bales of hay were inviting seats for watching square dance entertainment by Walter Cooley and his "Cooley Cues." Beautiful guide dogs were around for petting, admiring, and for use by their owners.

Chaired by the big-hearted Nell Meyer, it was the kind of party and the kind of spirited people that a few drops of much-needed rain could not dampen.

"FABULOUS FIFTIES Frocks" exhibit in Doubletree Mall is a must for all. Wearing apparel is of universal interest. For art's sake, for history's sake, and for the fun-of-it see the fabulous frocks of the '50s. (Actually, the body furnishings span the time from '39 through the '50s but that is a minor detail of little importance.) This is an era that many remember and those who don't will have fun seeing it. The music lives on, why shouldn't wearable art?

The Monterey History and Art Association has put together a classy and stunning display of designer dresses, hats, and accessories in the former Kelley Gallery, which proves to be a good setting.

This sort of show (and even a larger one) would be ideal to fill the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art. The H & A group has boxes and boxes of Spanish shawls, mantillas and apparel from the Mexican period; an extraordinary collection of Chinese robes, etc. to represent the early Chinese community here; family treasures made in all parts of the world have found a home and have become a part of peninsula and California history. The MPMA could have a Spanish room, a Chinese room, a Victorian room, and the Fabulous Fifties Frocks exhibit. Perhaps along with popular music of the corresponding times for dramatic emphasis. Why not put the two together in museum galleries to show designer vestures? They are works of art as is music. The young and the not-so-young would have fun seeing what parents, grandparents and great grandparents wore in "the ol' days."

The Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, does it. The garments of the socially elegant fill the fashion gallery and is one of the most popular sections in the museum. It could be done here, too. Temporarily at the MPMA and permanently if a home could be found. These costumes (if you will) or, historical wearing apparel (if you like that better), could be a year-round attraction for locals and for tourists. Placement in storage boxes is not the best solution for H & A's large collection, but it is the one now used at Pacific House.

"Fabulous Fifties Frocks" is artistically displayed (much like the one at the Met), with exceptional lighting by Darcy Forman. The life-sized diorama of a seated mannequin at a small semi-circle table by the brick wall is charming. Music by Bruce and Judy Cowan was perfect for the Gala Grand Opening on Sunday afternoon (the exhibit will be open daily 11-4 through Nov. 15).

Betty Herman (curator of the Costume Gallery), and her able assistants are to be commended on the current exhibit. Jean Graham began the process of going through boxes and boxes and cataloging the items given to H & A back in 1977 and she is still enthusiastic.

What they need now is a part-time curator and conservation materials for the care of the impressive collection. The goal is to preserve the beautiful clothes worn by the ladies of Monterey as an important part of our heritage and history.

The gowns, shoes, hats, coats and accessories in the current exhibit have been donated for the most part by Mrs. Charles Kramer and Mrs. James Lund. Mrs. Kramer gave 19 designer dresses and 95 designer hats.

After viewing, it is evident that designers today have drawn heavily on Norman Norell, Lilly Dache, Adele Simpson and Cecil Chapman. First lady Nancy Reagan wore James Galanos gowns to the inaugural balls in 1981 and 1985 and there are a few of his gowns in the show.

It is an exciting show with wide appeal. Second to wanting to know "what people do" is wanting to know "what people wear." N'est-ce pas?

A BIG weekend ahead: Friday: Gourmet dinner at the famous Cernot's elegant Victorian restaurant in PG given by Mr. and Mrs. Joe Garrihy to benefit the Suicide Prevention School Awareness Program at $150 per couple; Gateway Awards Night at Carmel Mission Ranch; and museum reception to show off the Masters Miniature to be raffled at the Festival of Trees the first weekend in December.

Saturday: Mrs. Kitty Dukakis, wife of the presidential candidate, will be honored by Jo and Jerry Barton in their Carmel Highlands home in the afternoon; Junior League's "Next to New Sale" at the Fairgrounds 9-4, $1 gets you in to buy new merchandise, boutique items, home decorating room will have draperies, wallpaper, etc., along with furniture, tools, machinery, etc.; Panhellenics welcome guests to cocktails in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Knickerbocker, Pebble, at 4:30 ($2.50 each).

Sunday: Monterey Bay Chapter of Links holds its "13th Anniversary Tea - International Flavor" in the Carmel Woman's Club from 2-4; Sharon Anderson will show her sculpture at the Pacific Grove Inn reception from 2-5; Symphony Guild members, music lovers and guests will attend "A Taste of Gold" in the Monterey Sheraton 4-6 p.m. Hors d'oeuvres provided by the best local restaurants to complement tasting of county's 12 gold medal-winning wines. After tasting, purchases of assembled cases at $100 per may be made for Nov. 20th delivery. Just in time for Thanksgiving.

Looking ahead one week: on the 14th: Hospice Christmas Bazaar all day in San Carlos Hall; the Golden Domino Tournament all day at MPCC; Friends of MIIS "Night at the Old Hotel Raffles, Singapore" Monterey Sheraton. Star-studded spectacular will feature the world's largest gin sling. (Ginnis are you listening?)

SUNDAY Nov. 15th: "West of Eden"; premiere fundraiser at the exclusive Stonepine Estate, C.V. to benefit "The Alliance on Aging" 2-5 p.m. There'll be: an equestrian exhibition, music of the West, hay rides around the estate, Wild, Wild West Barbecue (pheasant and wild boar sausages), Campfire Seafood (snapper, salmon, prawn), South of the Border (burritos, chili, etc.) and Corral of Sweets. $50 per person, but must reserve ahead. HOW TO LIVE WITH A GOLFAHOLIC

By Carmel Author Mark Oman

WARNING!

The following excerpt from the new book HOW TO LIVE WITH A GOLFAHOLIC is intended solely for the private use of those who suspect they may be friends of, related to, or — heaven forbid — married to a golfaaholic. In the weeks ahead you'll learn the whole sordid story; how to survive the "traps and hazards" of life with a golf lover.

Warning signs of the addiction

ALL RIGHT. So, how do you know if someone you care about is really a golfaaholic? What are the warning signs of the addiction you should be on the lookout for?

The following will help you zero in on those golfers with a high risk factor.

(NOTE: For consistency of terminology and clarity, we are using the masculine pronoun throughout this text. This by no means suggests we are ignoring the ever growing number of women golfaaholics. To be sure, the female golfer can turn into a golfaaholic of hair-raising proportions!)

• If someone at your work place regularly takes four-hour lunch breaks and tells you he has to make a "survey in turf management," you may be working for a golfaaholic.

• If you work in a high-tech company, you will probably just get an inter-office memo saying something like:

"Must complete an empirical analysis into the aerodynamic properties and trajectories of an impelled non-oblatious alveolate spheroid."

"Upon completion of the collection of data, a dissertation-review seminar will be conducted at the 19th interation where lubrication for research personnel will be available and grand funds et al. will be distributed..."

"P.S. Tell my wife to start the tofu casserole without me."

Obviously this executive needs to have his headcovers examined.

• There are certain words that trigger unconscious reactions in hard-core golfaaholics.

Perhaps you're showing pictures of your children to a friend or next door neighbor and you say, "Look at those cheeks. Have you ever seen such dimples?"

"Dimples! You call those dimples??? I've got balls with dimples that'll make—"

You get the idea. Of course such a response is a dead giveaway. But the golfaaholic can't help himself.

• The golfer begins to believe that the longer he takes to address the ball, test the wind, barometric pressure and soil moisture, the better he's going to hit it.

But he's not really dedicated until he starts being extra careful lining up his fourth putt for a smooth 8 on a par 3.

In the next issue we'll talk about warning signs before and after the honeymoon!

VENTANA WILDERNESS REPORT

BY GLENN R.
STEWART

'The Nesting Call'

FALL HAS come to Ventana wilderness Sanctuary and we are looking back over a successful bald eagle release program for the 1987 season.

Four young eagles were brought to the central coast from Canada and monitored closely since they were collected during mid-June. Today, three have dispersed to independence in the wild, and the fourth continues to return to our release tower several time per week for food.

It has been exciting to watch the eagles grow, learn to fly, and finally discover how to exist on their own in the wild.

Our goal is the careful placement of these, and future birds into the wild in a manner that will cause them to believe that they are truly residents of the Central Coast, so that they will eventually nest here.

This year's program is a step toward that goal, and it is a credit to the community that we have completed that important step. Many, many folks have pitched in to help. The American Bald Eagle is an inspirational representative of wildlife that is motivating us all.

One bald eagle advocate that deserves special credit is artist Rod Frederick of the GWS Galleries, Carmel. Rod visited the sanctuary during the summer just after we released the eagles. He and his wife, Leslie, witnessed the first uncertain flights of the birds, and subsequent returns to the tower that the eagles had come to regard as home.

Rod drank in the scenery, recording all he could on film and in his sketchbook. He hiked the canyons and rugged hillsides to view the birds from all angles as an aspect of his research. Then, with images of eagles freshly collected, Rod Frederick returned to his studio to do what he does best.

A painting slowly came to life depicting a pair of eagles perched upon a foggy and remote mountain. He titled it "The Nesting Call" and donated it to Ventana Wilderness Sanctuary in the hope that proceeds generated by a raffle of the painting would help to fund the bald eagle restoration process.

A grand unveiling of the original oil painting - which has been appraised at $22,000 - will be hosted by GWS Galleries on the evening of Nov. 6. The gala event will provide an opportunity to meet Rod Frederick, see the new painting along with other works by the artist, and review slides and video presentations on the bald eagle program.

Also in attendance will be a bald eagle and a golden eagle handled by wildlife biologist Al Harmata, and Ventana Wilderness Sanctuary's peregrine falcon.

The evening promises to be an enjoyable social event thanks to the generous hospitality of GWS Galleries, and a very informative time for those interested in learning more about our endangered national symbol, and efforts underway to restore it.

Please visit the gallery at 26390 Carmel Rancho Lane, or call 625-2288 for more information on the Unveiling.

VISITORS TO the Ventana Wilderness Area in Big Sur, "home" to the Ventana Wilderness Sanctuary wildlife preservation group, soak in the beauty of the coastline, with Highway 1 far below and out of sight. The drive into the wilderness area takes about one hour by car from Highway 1 at Ventana Inn. (Mac McDonald photo.)

Buddy Program has moved

The Buddy Program of the Monterey Peninsula has relocated its administrative offices to 1340 Munras Ave., Suite 207, in Monterey.

The Buddy Program is a child companionship agency matching children, aged 6 to 16, from single-parent families with adult volunteers on a one-to-one basis. Men and women over the age of 20 make a commitment to spend four hours a week for least six months as "Big Buddies" to children in need.

The Buddy Program serves all communities on the Monterey Peninsula. According to Administrative Director Cindy Joerger, a large number of female Big Buddies are ready and waiting eagerly to be matched, so young girls are particularly encouraged to apply at this time.

SHAKE ROOFS need not burn or decay.

Fire officials are correct when they say wood shake or shingle roofs can be a fire hazard. It is proven that 80% of the natural oils in a shake or shingle roof leach out in five years. Shakes become like kindling wood, easily set afire as well as supporting fungus and insects. Add several years worth of leaf and pine needle accumulation and the roof is extremely susceptible to sparks from the chimney - the number one cause of roof fires. The roofs are then accidents waiting to happen as was seen with the Pebble Beach tragedy.

Much of the risk of roof fires can be minimized by preventative action. Wood roofs should be cleaned of leaves and pine needles on a regular basis. Fire retardants can be applied to existing wood roofs. One such fire retardant has been used successfully in California for over 40 years. Flame-X has been used on 35,000 homes, the equivalent of 70,000,000 square feet and has had no known roof fires. Flame-X has been extensively tested by licensed testing laboratories and has stood the test of time, both in exposure tests and actual hill brush fires. Shake Savers, Inc., headquartered in Cleveland, Ohio, has a complete dealer network in California to service the market. Shake Savers, Inc. offers a free roof analysis to any homeowner who would be interested. The Shake Savers dealers will supply product literature, test data as well as explain their coating procedures.

Shake and shingle roofs can be protected from fire, fungus and insects. If you would like additional information and the dealer nearest you, call the Shake Savers home office at 1-800-24SHAKE or write to:

Parading around

Meanwhile Chris McKay and costumed child (bottom) made their way down Ocean Avenue. Many observers felt last weekend's parade was the largest in recent memory. A "reviewing stand" with city officials was set up on the terrace at Pine Inn. Adults were later treated to a birthday party at Sunset Center in honor of the city's 71st. (Mac McDonald photos.)

CARMEL VALLEY RANCH RESORT TO HOST CELEBRITY TENNIS PRO-AM

More than a dozen top tennis players and tennis-playing celebrities will play in a tournament this weekend to benefit a 16-year-old Carmel Valley girl.

A new event on the pro-am tennis tour, the tourney has been set for the Carmel Valley Ranch Resort, with a Friday through Sunday schedule of events Nov. 6, 7, and 8, it was announced by Harry Turner, the resort's president.

Pros playing include Eliot Teltscher, John Lloyd, Bill Scanlon, Bobbie Riggs, Mike Estep (Martina Navratilova's coach), Bernie Mitton, Sandy Mayer, Rich Fisher, Charlie Pasarell, Vitas Gerulaitis, John Austin, Tommy Tucker and Jackie Cooper.

Celebrities include Dynasty's John Forsyth (and others from the cast, including Leann Hunley and William Beckley), Ed Ames, Lucinda Crosby, James Farantino, Jimmy Messina, R.C. Owens, Tom Kennedy, Pilar Wayne, Jim Dunbar, Ron Ely, Michael Dante, Ted Lange, Joe Glover and Terry Melcher. Chad Everett and the Van Patten family (Nels, Vince, Jimmy, Dick and Patty), are maybes.

Players from local high school teams will act as ball boys and girls.

The events are intended to establish a non-profit charitable fund for Lindsey Wilder, who was stricken with a rare bone cancer last January. Ten years ago, there was no known cure. Today, Lindsey has an 85 percent chance of survival, thanks to an aggressive Los Angeles — based treatment program.

In a recent development a tumor was found on Wilder's spine, complicating the rehabilitation process. She will now need a $100,000 bone marrow transplant. Organizers of the tournament, however, were undaunted.

"We're just that much more motivated for this tournament," said Candice Gregory, who the goal for the tourney has been set at $100,000.

Friday night opens the weekend event with a Wine Tasting and Auction at Carmel Valley Ranch Resort Hotel, set for 5:30 p.m.

Saturday at 10 a.m. tennis pros and amateur celebrities will begin net play with exhibition matches and a round-robin of men's, women's, and mixed doubles. A Celebrity Gala and Reception will start at 7 p.m. at the hotel, with entertainment by tournament celebrities and performing artists.

Sunday's schedule kicks off at 10 a.m., with pro-am play until 4 p.m., followed by an automobile charity raffle and awards presentation.

Tickets are available at all BASS outlets. For more information please contact Tournament Director Candice Gregory at 624-5046.

MONTEREY BAY AQUARIUM RECEIVES 'EXCELLENCE ON THE WATERFRONT' AWARD

The Monterey Bay Aquarium recently won one of two top awards from Washington's Waterfront Center, in the first annual 'Excellence on the Waterfront' competition.

The seven-member jury was unanimous in selecting the aquarium, citing as criteria its sensitive architecture which captures the character of the city's industrial past, the intimate connection with the bay it faces, a powerful educational impact and as economic stimulus.

Harbour Town on Hilton Head Island in S.C. received the other top award — for the best classic entry.

The winners were selected from 109 entries submitted from 28 states and two Canadian provinces. The competition was designed to highlight quality waterfront renovations around the continent, because waterfront sites often present once-in-a-generation opportunities for community enhancement.

The Waterfront Center, formed in 1981, is a non-profit educational corporation representing the broad public interest in waterfront developments. The center's board of advisors, reflecting the 900 members, includes people from such varied backgrounds as economic development, municipal government and citizen's organizations.

In his endorsement of the aquarium's entry into the competition, Monterey Mayor Dan Albert said, "The Monterey Bay Aquarium has been a preeminent example of a development which is extremely sensitive to the waterfront environment as well as to its relationship with historic Cannery Row."

"The aquarium is not only an architectural masterpiece, but it is also an educational institution which, in its truest sense, celebrates the Monterey Bay experience," he continued. "It is, and will continue to be, a source of tremendous civic pride, not only for our city but for the entire region."

FOUNDATION TO HOST FIFTH ANNUAL 'JUMPIN' PUMPKINS'

The Foundation to Support the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District will host its fifth annual fundraiser, "Jumpin' Pumpkins" on Saturday evening, Nov. 7. This traditional event includes an evening of fine wines and food donated and served by local wineries and restaurants along with dance music performed by the Bow Williams Band. The event will begin at 8 p.m. at the Monterey Conference Center in the Serra Ballroom.

Those interested in attending this gala evening can obtain tickets from Abinante's Music in Monterey, or by calling 372-1250.

Proceeds from this fund-raiser will go to the foundation which established a grant awards program in the spring of 1984. Since that time, almost 30 grants amounting to more than $70,000 have been awarded to selected project applications from MPUSD faculty and staff from all grade levels as well as to community organizations. The academic areas have included mathematics, science and literature. Examples of grants awarded this year include, among others, a school wide publishing center for student authored books, as well as a family math program that provides a special class for parents to take this subject with their children in a cooperative atmosphere.

Local higher education representatives from the Monterey Institute of International Studies, the Naval Postgraduate School, McGraw-Hill, Defense Language Institute, Monterey Peninsula College, Hopkins Marine Station as well as interested members of the community guided the foundation in developing criteria for applications along with assisting in evaluating the proposals submitted. These procedures will again be used in granting and funding future project applications.

The Barton home is on Highway 1 south of Rocky Point Restaurant sitting on a point overlooking the Pacific Ocean. The reception begins with a cocktail party. Admission is $50 per person. For further details, contact Bill Stewart at 624-2544.

NANCY AND Loretta Ely put the finishing touches on harvest table for All Saints' Church's annual Harvest Tea, set for 2 to 5 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 7 in the parish hall, Ninth and Dolores in Carmel. Various table settings, created by peninsula residents and businesses, will feature the church's 75th anniversary "Diamond Jubilee" theme. KAZU TOPS 10TH ANNIVERSARY WITH "A TASTY AFFAIR"

It's back and it's tastier than ever: KAZU's second annual "A Tasty Affair," taking place Saturday, Nov. 14, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Monterey Plaza's Grand Ball Room.

Monterey Bay's public radio station KAZU 90.3 FM has been tooting its horn all year to celebrate its 10th anniversary. But on Nov. 14, the KAZU staff will turn the spotlight on the best of the area's food, wine and song. This is one birthday party you don't want to miss!

The affair that began last year continues, reaching new epicurean heights with dozens of area food specialties, ranging from sushi to sachertorte and tortellini to duck soup. Among the caterers and restaurants participating are Balme & Blume and The Carriage House, Creme de la Creme, Delfino's, Dudley's, Fandango, Incredible Edibles, Jimmy's American Grill, The Lodge At Pebble Beach, Nami Sushi, Pasta Mia, Sakura and Secrets.

Pairing these gourmet treats will be 60 varietal and sparkling wines produced by 26 leading California wineries, including: Ahlgren Vineyard; David Bruce Winery, Davis Bynum Winery, Chimney Room Winery, Clos du Bois Wines, Congress Springs Vineyard, Domaine Chandon, Dry Creek Vineyard, Durmy Vineyard, Gloria Ferrer Champagne Caves, Felton-Empire Vineyards, William Hill Winery, Jekel Vineyards, Hanns Kornell Champagne Cellars, The Monterey Vineyard, Morgan Winery, Ravenswood, Raymond Vineyard and Cellar, Ridge Vineyards, Rutherford Hill Winery, Silver Oaks Cellars, Smith & Hook Winery, Sonora Winery & Port Works, Sterling Vineyards, Robert Talbott Vineyards and William Wheeler Winery.

To complete this sensuous feast, KAZU will offer an equally appetizing range of live music throughout the food and wine tasting. Then the evening will end on a high note when Montaj takes the stage at 9 p.m. to perform its own brand of danceable funk.

KAZU's first affair last year drew hundreds of people to Carmel's Highlands Inn. This year's affair will move to larger quarters at the Monterey Plaza ballroom. Ample parking space will be available.

Tickets for "A Tasty Affair" are still available for $25 per person at Center Stage Ticketing, 467 Alvarado, Monterey; or can be reserved by calling KAZU 90.3 FM at 375-7275.

RLS CHORUS INVITED TO IRISH MUSIC FESTIVAL

The Robert Louis Stevenson School Chorus is one of only 20 ensembles to be invited to participate in the Dublin, Ireland, Festival of Music in June 1988.

The Lord Mayor of Dublin, Alderman Bertie Ahern T.D., extended the invitation to the chorus to perform in the festival, which this year highlights the Dublin Millennium Celebration.

Directed by Fine Arts Department Chairman Robert Klevan, the chorus has received "superior" ratings in the CMEA festival for the last six years, has sent members to CCS and all-state choral events, has performed at numerous Christmas functions around the peninsula, and has sung several times at Giants baseball games in San Francisco.

Klevan commented, "We were selected after a personal audition by Dr. Byron McGilvary of San Francisco State University last March. While the Chorus has won many honors over the years, this is the highlight of the choral program for me. It has always been an outstanding group but this year promises to be our best!"

Stevenson boasts an enrollment of 65 members in the Chorus and Chamber Singers — one of the largest in CCS.

LOCAL AUTHOR TO ADDRESS WESTERNERS

Local author Michael K. Hemp, executive director and research historian of the Cannery Row Foundation, will be the featured speaker at the next regular meeting of the Monterey County Corral of Westerners. He will speak on "The Stinking History of Cannery Row." The program, which starts at 8 p.m. Monday, Nov. 9 at St. John's Parish Hall in Monterey, is free and is open to the public.

Hemp, who is a native Californian, is continuing the years of historical research and oral history interviews which brought him to completion of his book Cannery Row, published recently by The History Co. He will describe how The Row really started in about 1900 and will follow its rise and fall in about 1950.

Westerners is an international organization of people interested in the history of the American West. Independent chapters, or "Corrals," are found around the world. The Monterey County Corral of Westerners meets on the second Monday of the month throughout the year, at St. John's Parish Hall, Mark Thomas Drive and Josselyn Canyon Road in Monterey. A pot-luck dinner at 7 p.m. is followed by a program at 8 p.m. Further information is available at the meetings or at 624-4490 or 624-4598.

Spooktacular setting

MARK CARBERRY, a fifth-grader at Carmel River School, threw a surprise Halloween party for 15 of his fellow students, topping it off with his "Haunted Cave," wherein the basement of his home was transformed into a scary funhouse complete with Wanda the Witch (family friend Laura Milligan), two crawl-through tunnels, animated skeleton with flashing eyes, and sound effects galore. Mark did all the work himself. After word got out about the Haunted Cave, neighborhood youngsters were lined up to the sidewalk to enter the Mesa Place home.

Slip into a magnificent stretch limousine and escape into a fantasy...or host a lavish gourmet sitdown dinner exquisitely prepared to your needs. If you have a passion for the good life and want the authoritative last word in good taste, then Your Maitre d' was designed for you.

A company that provides the ultimate in entertainment, Hans Munck has created a one-of-a-kind getaway service, so inviting you'll wonder how you ever got along without it. From cuisine along the coast in a sleek limousine, to exotic dining, to lavish beach parties, to holiday balls, or sentimental family receptions, Munck provides everything to make for an elegant and luxurious experience.

Imagine an evening in which everything you desire is possible, an evening to spoil yourself with the very best. Whether solo, with friends, or family, the extraordinary is at your fingertips, each moment sensitively orchestrated so that you do not adapt to the evening, but rather it adapts to you! Actualize a whim for caviar on the beach, shopping in style, or hosting an elegant lawn party...every detail carefully attended to by Your Maitre d'.

Experience a chauffeured limousine with either male or female driver, with complimentary bar, tinted windows, throw pillows on a velvet interior, dual divider for privacy, moonroof, stereo player, TV/VCR, intercom system, and plenty of foot and leg room. Here in an umbrella of glamour and excitement you can zealously pursue the true meaning of "fun." Dressed to thrill, step into the nightlife with Your Maitre d' co-ordinating the details. Sit back and enjoy cocktails, music, push-button lighting — all within an aura of adventure. Style, comfort and luxury will follow you from one stop to the next, eyes turning from onlookers as your night unfolds.

Hans Munck, president and owner, comments that his role in developing such a business was fate. A natural with people and steeped with experience in the fine restaurant business, it was destiny that he created the concept of Your Maitre d'.

"I have always enjoyed working with people and taking care of their needs. When I discovered that I could combine my talent with an open business market, I knew Your Maitre d' was 'made for me.' After researching the business I found an office, hired a staff and employed a full-time chef. What was surprising to me was the rapid growth of my company during the first months when most businesses seem to flounder. I suppose this can be attributed to my years of experience in the restaurant business where I established a strong clientele of patrons who like to entertain."

After three years, Your Maitre d' is the only catering company on the Central Coast that provides every catering and entertainment need from A-Z. With locations in Carmel, La Jolla and Beverly Hills, 24-hour service is available with the accent on amenities, including the welcoming of guests, providing flowers, music, gourmet appetizers and/or dinner selections, professional photographers, selected spirits and beverages and complimentary clean-up. Munck points out, "When you select Your Maitre d' as host, you never have to lift a finger."

Munck caters to individuals, couples, families and businesses. The parties he has organized range from Country-Western themes to front lawn parties, weddings, sit-down dinners, combination limousine/beach parties, art gallery openings and military balls hosting more than 600 guests.

His most recent entertainment success was catering the John Lennon show at Dyanson Galleries, handling a crowd of 1,200. With Yoko Ono featured as the special guest, Your Maitre d' was also responsible for co-ordinating her accommodations, dinner reservations, sightseeing, and traveling needs. Munck comments, "It was a delight working with Yoko Ono, and I was pleased that everything went as smoothly as planned. I feel confident working with celebrities for I understand they are people just like you and me. The difference is that they desire more privacy and they know exactly what they want in service and comfort. I am flexible with unexpected or out-of-the-ordinary requests, and will do everything possible to fulfill them. My clients are precious to me and I want to give them the very best today, as well as every tomorrow."

Other noted personalities that Munck has worked with include the Rockefellers, President and Mrs. Gerald Ford, the Firestone family, Tony Bennett, Clint Eastwood, Olivia Newton John, Michael J. Fox, John Travolta, Lee Trevino, Joan Fontaine, Charlie Pride, Bruce Springsteen promotional committee, Lee Greenwood, Leontyne Price, Mrs. Bing Crosby.

HANS MUNCK, owner of catering-limousine service Your Maitre d', has seen his business grow twofold in the three years since he founded it.

Munck's ongoing success in both the private and business sector is a direct result of his wide-ranging services and his commitment to quality. In the tradition of Old World standards, he is sensitive to client needs and understands how to make each person feel special. If it means sacrificing off-time hours, despite a busy work schedule, he does so without question. His dedication to clients is unwavering and it is this selfless attitude that has made him prosperous in his endeavor.

Your Maitre d' has doubled in size in the past year. With a regular clientele of more than 1,000 businesses and individuals, he has recently expanded into Southern California. Adding more limousines to his inventory, and increasing his staff, Your Maitre d' is without doubt one of California's most respected entertainment and catering services.

One of his clients comments, "Why should I be satisfied with mediocrity when such excellence lies before me? Hans is not only a business associate, but a trusted friend. I can depend on his services and I never have to worry whether a party will be a success or a flop."

Munck adds, "I am pleased to say that there is no slow season in my business, we are busy all year round. As would be expected, many catering jobs are called in at the spur of the moment. But whether the event is last notice or pre-scheduled, I have learned to be prepared. To date, I have never had to turn anyone away."

He continues, "I take pride in overseeing everything that is arranged in my business. This often means working around the clock, by my love of being around people and providing them an evening of luxury makes every party enjoyable. I look forward to each job, whether it is driving the limousine, hosting a gala event, or catering to a business convention. Each has its own personality, never again to be repeated."

The media has also given coverage to Munck's company upon learning that he supports a number of charity events every year. These include the Special Olympics, the Bach Festival, Dixieland Monterey, The Boy Scouts of America, March of Dimes, Make-A-Wish Foundation, and the Chamber of Commerce. Munck says, "I think it is a privilege to support such fine organizations. It is a way of helping my fellow man as well as introducing my business to the community."

This year he is adding a new charity event to his already demanding schedule: a charity Thanksgiving Day dinner. Turkey dinner with all the trimmings will be served at the Church of the Wayfarer in Carmel on Thanksgiving Day to help out senior citizens, the needy, and the disabled throughout the Monterey Peninsula. His staff is donating their time to make this event possible. Limousine service will be offered at no charge to handicapped who need transportation to and from the dinner. Meals will be served from 1 to 4 p.m. on Thanksgiving Day, with reservations limited to the first 500 callers. To place a reservation, call Danon Bourn at 624-1717 before Nov. 24.

Many comment that it is Munck's European background that gives him his special charm and unusual flair. Ever aspiring to reach higher goals, he is hoping to add the service of a Lear Jet in the near future. Plans are already in the works, and if all goes well, by 1988 clients will have access to this exciting and fast form of travel.

Munck concludes, "Life is to be lived to the fullest. Through Your Maitre d' I make peoples' dreams come true. Through their joy and happiness I find self-fulfillment in my life. I couldn't imagine a better way to express my talents or feel accomplished in my life."

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

Some interesting statistics — each week 210 Americans reach the age of 100; each year 56,000 people over the age of 65 get married in the United States, and 10,000 get divorced.

Is retirement hazardous to your health? Not according to Dr. David J. Ekerdt of the VA Outpatient Clinic in Boston. His Normative Aging Study, published in the American Journal of Public Health, compared two groups of men aged 55 to 73. One group had retired; the other continued working. The men were examined three to four years apart. No significant health differences were found. "There are a number of considerations that can guide personal decisions about the choice or timing of retirement," said the doctor, "but the fear of failing health should not be one of them."

Remember When? April 10, 1963 — The U.S. Navy atomic submarine "Thresher" sank mysteriously in the Atlantic off New England with the loss of all 129 crew members aboard. It remains the worst submarine disaster in the Navy's history.

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

Treats, not tricks

Carmel Rotary, La Playa Hotel, Nov. 3

Oh Almighty and eternal God. We humbly ask thy blessing on this food and bless us all to do thy service in the time spent of Rotary service above self.

May the changing moods of the human heart never-blind us to your love.

Halloween is a Celtic feast older than Christianity. It was adopted by the church and it became All Hallows Eve or the eve of All Saints Day. It is a feast of surprises and Almighty God is the greatest trick and treater of all. He has pulled one huge, monumental trick on us. He created us without asking whether we wanted it or not.

Throughout our life all kinds of things happen, both good and bad, whether we want them or not. He promises that if we like the trick, he will treat us in time and eternity. God created us out of love and he demands that we love him and our neighbor in return. These two commands are inseparable. We can not have one without the other.

Almighty God has given men the Halloween capacity to surprise, astonish, delight and entertain us. Take a look at your close friends, your spouse, your family, ask yourself whether you let them surprise, astonish, delight and entertain you the way God designed them to do.

Oh Lord, please give us the childlike capacity to love you and our neighbor. Never allow us to take anyone for granted. You are the ultimate tricker, Oh Lord, so don't forget our treat.

Seniors offered free check-ups

Free health check-ups for older adults will be offered by the SCANS (Senior Citizen and Nursing Services) program of the Monterey County Health Department. Persons over 55 are eligible for this service.

Check-ups are offered by appointment only. To make an appointment, call 899-4271.

PASSING NOTES

Homecoming 1987

THE WEEK of Oct. 26-30 was Homecoming Week at Carmel High School. On Tuesday, students dressed in pajamas to show their school spirit. On Wednesday, we wore black in mourning for our opponent, RLS. Each day during lunch there were class competitions, including who can eat a McDonald's meal fastest, who can pile the most shaving cream on their partner's head, and who can mummify their partner with toilet paper the quickest.

On Friday there was a school rally. Our new football coach, Jeff Wright, psyched us up for the game. Instead of yelling at each other, the different classes yelled collectively for the team. Amery Faia (senior) was chosen as Homecoming Queen and her first and second attendants were Jennifer Farrow (senior) and Christine Williams (junior). The Freshman Princess was Paige Butterfield.

Also at the rally, our new school slogans were introduced. The first, created by juniors Tara Little and Kristy Nichols, is "Carmel Pride — Don't Leave Home Without It!" The faculty came up with "Carmel Cares." These reflect our goals for this school year in many ways.

On Friday afternoon, the band, football teams, cheerleaders and representatives from each class piled into convertibles, trucks, and fire engines for a parade in downtown Carmel. We went up and down Ocean Avenue stopping traffic with our blaring horns and screaming sirens. The evening ended with a bonfire rally and Mexican dinner/dance back at the high school.

Although we lost our Homecoming game Saturday, we didn't lose the closeness and excitement that we built during the week. In addition, there will be a semi-formal Homecoming Dance on Nov. 8 at the Doubletree Inn in Monterey.

If you have any questions, comments, or story ideas please write to: Passing Notes, c/o Carmel High, PO Box 222780, Carmel, 93922.

Filmed in Czechoslovakia in 1986, it is the story of the Laurel and Hardy relationship of an irascible truckdriver and his bumbling assistant in danger of losing his ancestral home to scheming bureaucrats. My Sweet Little Village will be shown in Czech with subtitles.

HOW THIS RAKE
CAN SAVE YOUR LIFE.

This simple garden tool is a firefighter. It can help you clear away brush and leaves that act like kindling around your home. And you.

So if you live near the forest, do a little raking. And that's not all. Landscape your home with a fire retardant plant like ivy. Use spark arrester screens on your chimney and vents. And put fire retardant material on your roof and underneath your house where it is exposed.

Because a forest fire burns more than trees.

Remember.
Only you can prevent forest fires.

SERVERS INSPECT the Ventana Wilderness Sanctuary's 30-foot tower high over the Big Sur coast. The tower, built by sanctuary volunteers, is used to feed, observe and eventually release eaglets to the wild. (Mac McDonald photos.)

ANOTHER TOWER, as seen from the base of the 30-foot tower, is used to release orphaned birds, or raptors, to the wild. The lower tower is about 20-feet high and was also constructed entirely by sanctuary volunteers.

Bald eagles reintroduced to the Central Coast

By MAC McDONALD

AFTER A 50-year absence the bald eagle has returned to Big Sur — but not without a little help from a few friends. Four 8-week-old eaglets were brought to Anderson Canyon in Big Sur and released this summer by a non-profit wildlife preservation group based in Carmel Valley, The Ventana Wilderness Sanctuary. Wildlife biologists brought the birds to a site overlooking the valley and the Pacific Ocean above Big Sur and released them on a foot tower. There the young birds were fed a diet of fish, rabbit, goose and ground squirrel, and eventually learned how to fly. The eaglets were fed by wildlife attendants seen, in order to simulate the wild as much as possible, until they were big enough to sustain themselves in the wild. The four eaglets brought in from Vancouver Island, British Columbia have since departed apparently to feeding grounds in the Pacific Northwest where salmon is abundant but are expected to return to the Central Coast in December or January. It is hoped the eagles will return again to nest when they reach sexual maturity at age 5. That's when the birds gain their trademark white head and tail feathers.

The privately funded wildlife group hopes to bring 40 more eaglets to the Ventana Wilderness Area through 1990 in hopes of permanently restoring the bald eagle population there. The majestic birds — symbol of our nation — have not been seen in the area since the opening of Highway 1 more than 50 years ago. In fact, bald eagles have disappeared as a resident nesting species from the entire coast of California.

Statewide it is estimated that there are fewer than 70 left, most of those in extreme northern parts of the state.

The group hopes to meet the Pacific States Bald Eagle Recovery Plan's goal of four nesting pairs on the Central Coast.

Eaglets have been and will continue to be brought from an abundant population in British Columbia under the auspices of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. The Ventana project is only one of two bald eagle repopulation programs in the state; the other is located in the Channel Islands off the Southern California coast.

The group itself, which does not receive any financial support from either state or federal governments, was founded in 1977 by real estate agent Sal Lucido and Carmel Valley veterinarian Dr. Gerald Petkus. The two decided to join forces because government support, especially money, was severely lacking. The pair donated the 240-acre research site and formed the group, which now boasts more than 700 members, receives corporate support from companies such as PG&E, Chevron and IBM, and benefits from a solid corps of volunteers.

Much of the work on the site, which is surrounded by the 200,000 acre Ventana Wilderness Area in the Los Padres National Forest, was done by Lucido, Petkus and their fellow volunteers, from clearing roads in the dense underbrush, to actually erecting the 30-foot tower used for the eaglets.

The scientific work is carried out by experienced wildlife experts led by Glenn Stewart, a wildlife biologist and executive director of the sanctuary. Movements of the birds are monitored by radio telemetry equipment; the birds are equipped with tiny "backpacks" that help biologists track their whereabouts and habits.

While most of their efforts now are concentrated on the bald eagle program, the group's other aims include assisting with the restoration of the coastal peregrine falcon population, developing rearing and release techniques for orphaned raptors, promoting environmental stewardship and developing a field research station on the sanctuary property to study indigenous plant and animal life on the Central Coast.

A 15-member board governs the sanctuary's operations and a newsletter, On the Wild Side is sent out regularly to members. Stewart also writes a monthly column for the Carmel Pine Cone.

For further information contact the Ventana Wilderness Sanctuary at 429-2466 or write to: PO Box 894, Carmel Valley 93924.

Art shows will benefit efforts of Ventana Wilderness Sanctuary

THE EFFORTS of artists will assist the Ventana Wilderness Sanctuary during two benefits scheduled in Carmel this weekend. GWS Galleries will present "Bring Home the Eagles" from 5 to 8 p.m. Friday, Nov. 6, and the Carmel Art Guild sponsors its second "Spirit of Christmas" benefit show Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 7-8, at the Mission Ranch Barn.

The mingling of art and science has resulted in the largest grass roots promotional program in the country to return bald eagles to their native homeland. A gala celebration, featuring live eagles, a video presentation on California's eagles, and an auction to name an eaglet, will be presented 5 to 8 p.m. Friday, Nov. 6 at GWS Galleries, Carmel.

The gala will kick off a nationwide fundraising campaign to benefit the Ventana Wilderness Sanctuary, a 240-acre research site in Monterey County. Biologists with this non-profit membership group carry out goals set by the government to restore bald eagles as a nesting species, yet they use no government funds.

The gala celebration will feature the debut of The Nesting Call, an original oil painting by wildlife artist Rod Frederick being donated to Ventana as the centerpiece of the fund-raising program. The painting reveals two bald eagles in courtship, calling to each other and signaling the hope of the program: that bald eagles will nest atop the redwoods and repopulate the Pacific coast from San Francisco to San Luis Obispo. The eagles abandoned the area by 1933, the same year Highway 1 opened the area to tourist traffic.

The Nesting Call, valued at $20,000, will be raffled, with funds going to the Ventana bald eagle program. Tickets will be sold by a national network of 1,200 art dealers associated with the Greenwich Workshop, Inc., the publisher of Rod Frederick's limited edition fine art prints.

Glenn Stewart, executive director of the Ventana Wilderness Sanctuary, says, "This summer we released four eaglets from our site in Anderson Canyon in the Los Padres National Forest. Next year we plan to release 12. Eagles don't nest until they are at least 3-years-old. We predict they'll return to Ventana, and if our program proceeds on target, we will have bald eagles nesting here in the early 1990s. By using his art to support our efforts, Rod Frederick just made the job of staying on target a whole lot easier."

The gala celebration is supported by donations from a variety of local businesses — from the printing of the invitations to the wine to the professional auctioneer. The gala is expected to draw more than 500 people and has drawn support from such celebrities as Clint Eastwood, Robert Redford, Ed McMahon and "Wild Kingdom's" Jim Fowler.

For and invitation or more information, call GWS Galleries, 26390 Carmel Rancho Lane, Carmel, 625-2288 to toll-free, (800) 843-6467.

Jung group studies male archetype

A NEW point of view regarding how it is that the difference between masculinity and patriarchy is made visible in today's world will be revealed in the discussion of the book, Phallos: Sacred Image of the Masculine, at 7 p.m. Friday, Nov. 6. It will be presented at All Saints' Church, Ninth and Dolores, Carmel. The event is sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula Friends of C.G. Jung.

 Written by Eugene Monick, an Episcopal priest who is also a Jungian analyst, the book addresses the related questions: What marks a man as masculine? What is the essential foundation, the root source, of masculine identity? Through close examination of the physical, mythological and psychological manifestations of phallos, the author discovers an autonomous inner god, coequal with the maternal principle as an origination force in the psyche.
 For some people, both men and women, this book may be the beginning of lively discussions. In this book, phallos emerges as an essentially mysterious divine reality that is at once practical and numinous, object of fascination and religious devotion for men and women — and signature of personal identity for half the human race.

Clarification

IN AN article that appeared last week, Martin Morgado, author of Junipero Serra's Legacy, was quoted as saying that his book contains "little new information." This statement should have read, "little new source material," in reference to the limited amount of original letters/documents, etc. available to Serra researchers.

Women's tennis clinics offered

The Monterey Peninsula College Women's Tennis team is sponsoring a fund-raising tennis clinic at the Hyatt Regency Monterey on Sunday, Nov. 15. Hyatt Pro Vic Brown is donating the courts for the cause.

Co-sponsored by Wilson Sporting Goods, the event will utilize a fast serve radar gun to measure the speed of a serve, and tennis pros from local clubs will help participants fine tune their tennis talents. Mike Trabert, son of tennis great Tony Trabert and a tennis pro in his own right; Matt Anger, and Mark Elliott, former Junior Wimbledon Coach, will be among the instructors at the clinic.

The day's schedule calls for activity to begin at 9 a.m. and end at 4 p.m. with a break from noon to 1 p.m. There will be prizes and drawings for all kinds of tennis togs and essentials. Entry fee is $25 and will go to benefit the MPC Women's Tennis Team, which is playing on newly paved tennis courts this year at MPC with new nets due to arrive soon.

Tennis Coach Diane Smith would also like to put out an invitation for new members to join the team. Players must be taking 12 units at MPC, but the team participation fills part of that requirement.

Smith would like to hear from potential participants by Nov. 5, if possible.

Call her at 646-4110 for more information about the team or the clinic.

THEATER REVIEW

By Ellen Kester

GroveMont stages 'Benefactors'

UNDER THE very able direction of Dan Gotch, Benefactors opened Oct. 29 with an insightful, energetic performance. Written by the British playwright, Michael Frayn, this script portrays two neighboring couples whose interdependence — never complementary — grows more and more symbiotic over the years.

Depicting some 10-20 years in this relationship, the play's structure calls for a carefully delineated place-time orientation in a succession of quickly paced scenes. The necessary clarity in these flashback-flashforward scenes is achieved through each actor's considerable techniques, the use of stage space, the lighting effects, and timing.

The GroveMont production conveys the delicate line between humor and melancholy that Aristotle stated was inherent in comedy. The playwright poses the issue concerning individual and societal "benefactors."

The casting is fortunate. Each of the four actors creates characters with whom the audience readily identifies: Ann Mattingly playing Jane; Michael Jacobs is her architect husband, David; Jan Manning portrays Sheila, and Alan Smith is the "Giantkiller" named Colin. The plot depicts changes in their lives and marriages. It hinges on David's efforts to install a modern high-rise at Basuto Road, the twilight area of one of London's slums. Thus, the key images spring from this metaphor — architecture — and each character's speeches are sprinkled with such images of pulling down and building up as well as progressive collapse and rehabilitation schemes.

The ups and downs within each marriage and between the couples serve as counterpoints to the hopes and frustrations David experiences as he struggles to get his design approved by various bureaucratic commissions.

THE GROVEMONT Theater's production is insightful and zestful. The pacing is excellent which is important for this wordy, Chekhovian-like script. The set, costumes, blocking, and lighting effects all work together to dramatize the intimacy of this "changes-in-life" exploring theme. The performance resonates with both comedy and pathos due to the ensemble's focus and commitment to the text.

Ann Mattingly portrays Frayn's sensible and sensitive Jane with flair, authentically conveying the playwright's pivotal character against which the other three are being measured. Her voice and facial expressions, always purposeful, lend sparkle to the asides — which could be intrusive — thus contributing zest to the production. Her portrayal is believable in the early surrogate mother moments and later when she vehemently denounces Colin.

Michael Jacobs' finely honed technique enables him to enact the role of the bright, creative artist, who may, as Jane suggests, be morally blind, but who, nevertheless, refuses to see the evil around him. Like a determined sailing vessel on choppy, turbulent waters, Jacob's crisp speeches jibe and dance across the waves of faith (Jane); hero worship (Sheila); and sarcasm (Colin). His quick-paced lines and energetic movements convey his absorption in his doomed project and enable the audience to accept his blindness to Sheila's love and Colin's betrayal.

Jan Manning as Sheila probably has the most challenging role. Meek and dreadfully insecure, pulled down by her insensitive husband, Sheila undergoes some changes even though David misses them. "The only one who didn't change was Sheila."

Manning's portrayal defines Sheila and draws the audience to this pitiful character through such techniques as her thigh-rubbing gesture, her tilted head posture, and the querulous voice. As the victim of Jane's and David's benefaction as well as her husband's indifference and cruelty, Sheila quivers one moment and dares to object the next. In spite of Sheila's defeatism, Manning elicits the audience's sympathy through her insight and intensity.

Colin, the villainous character who even admits "the blackness in me," calls for a veteran actor and Alan Smith is that. Suave and self important in Act I, Colin becomes increasingly self-pleased and self and socially destructive in Act II. Smith's interpretation implies the horrific just beneath the smiling surface, reminding one of the affable Iago's betrayal of the famous couple, Desdemona and Othello, thus enhancing this contemporary play with some of the bard's intentionality.

For a good evening in which a thoughtful and refreshing modern play is well matched by its direction and performance, this production of Benefactors is more than worth while. It will be performed Thursdays through Sundays, ending Nov. 21, at the GroveMont Theater, 320 Hoffman at Lighthouse, Monterey.

THEATER REVIEW

By Joanne Tenenbaum

'Sanctuary' debuts at Sunset Theater

INSIDE MORE than one of Robert Browning's poems there's a good play screaming to be let out. This year's Carmel Festival of Firsts prizewinner, James Wall, has liberated one of them with Sanctuary, based on "The Bishop Orders His Tomb," a dramatic monologue that encapsulates a lifetime of competition, avarice and duplicity.

Sanctuary premiered last weekend at Sunset Theater, in a tidy production directed by Peter De Bono, with Harrison Shields and Jim Jensen, two peninsula acting heavyweights, in the principal roles.

In "The Bishop Orders His Tomb," a dying bishop, Anselm, commands his sons to build a princely tomb to his exacting specifications and to adorn it with a priceless piece of lapis lazuli as large as a man's head, "that I may watch at leisure if he leers—/Old Gandolf at me, from his onion-stone./As still he envied me..."

Sanctuary looks in on Anselm (Shields) and Gandolf (Jensen) about 400 years after Browning's poem leaves off. Not surprisingly (considering the time span), both bishops are ghosts. And the setting, St. Praxed's Church in Rome, is the scene of their tombs.

Browning's poem only states the rivalry between the two bishops. Wall's play vivisects it. But despite the fact that the two make their first entrance in a footrace, their ancient conflicts seem at first far behind them.

Gandolf, the older of the two, likes to dust the altar, rearrange its accoutrements, and gloat over the superior location of his tomb (on the gospels side). Anselm, the younger, blasphemes relentlessly and plays solitaire, having learned how by watching, invisible, over the shoulder of a sacristan.

Sometimes the two get so bored they play tic-tac-toe on the crypt's tile floor, using rosaries and prayer books for their playing pieces. Eternity indeed lasts forever, and since the two never leave this setting, it seems reasonable to assume they cannot.

SHIELDS AND Jensen clearly relish their roles. Wall's ear for dialogue is well-tuned, and Shields and Jensen handle the lines well, quickly establishing the sort of wryly antagonistic relationship into which you might expect two people to settle after 400 years of forced company. But there's a lot more to it than that.

In the course of the play, the bishops unravel the innermost secrets of their intertwined hearts. And their inmost secrets are nothing venial, as a bishop's deathbed speech to his sons might well lead you to expect.

The two-character action is rounded out by brief scenes in which characters from the bishops' lives appear on stage, in 16th century dress, to reenact key moments from the past. Notable among such scenes are those involving Anselm's father, Menocchio the sculptor (Jim Webber).

This character counterpoints Gandolf's docile adherence to Church dogma and Anselm's political cynicism with an experience of divinity that is genuine ("They say His face is stern, and I see laughter"). The price he pays for his independence of thought and the manner in which he meets his fate are poignant moments of effective theater. Webber turns in a strong performance as a simple man of conviction.

Mark Heckman as Paolo, Gandolf's older brother, and Teresa Del Piero as Giselda, the mother of Anselm's children, also contribute effective performances in smaller roles.

Picking up on Browning's compact themes, Sanctuary presents us with two men who are creatures of their era, emblems of the hypocrisies, injustices and double standards of the 16th-century Church.

After 400 years of cooling their ghostly heels in tombs far inferior to their precise orders, they finally engage in the master game — facing themselves and each other and working out their differences. How they do this makes for an engaging evening of theater.

Sanctuary is both well conceived and well written and their premier production showcases it as a play of some promise.

Diabetes support group meets

Pharmacist Kelly Matsuda will address the diabetes support group on non-prescription medicines and diabetes management at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 11 in the main conference room at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula.

"Rx: Ask the Pharmacist" will help people with diabetes choose those over-the-counter medicines which will not affect blood sugar and make control of the disease more difficult. The meeting is open to anyone with an interest in diabetes health care.

A shipboard Romance

If you've ever stood on a wharf looking up at the deck of a departing cruise ship, you will know exactly how it feels to look up from Lower Trail to the house at No. 24765. You're about 25 feet below the 1st floor level, and a broad covered deck spans the entire facade. A sturdy railing goes around the deck, and a heavy mesh screen just below it completes the illusion.

A comfortable driveway leads up to a parking plaza and big double garage. The front door, just beside it, opens to an entrance hall, and a stairway beckons you upward.

At the top of the stair and to the left, the shipboard illusion continues. The living room, 24x17, resembles a First Class salon. Its beamed ceiling declines gently toward the outside deck. The floors are shining random oak planks. Broad picture windows form the west wall and look toward an ocean view extending (with some Monterey pine tree interruptions) from Pt. Lobos to Pebble Beach. There's a fireplace on the east wall and a large dining ell at the far left.

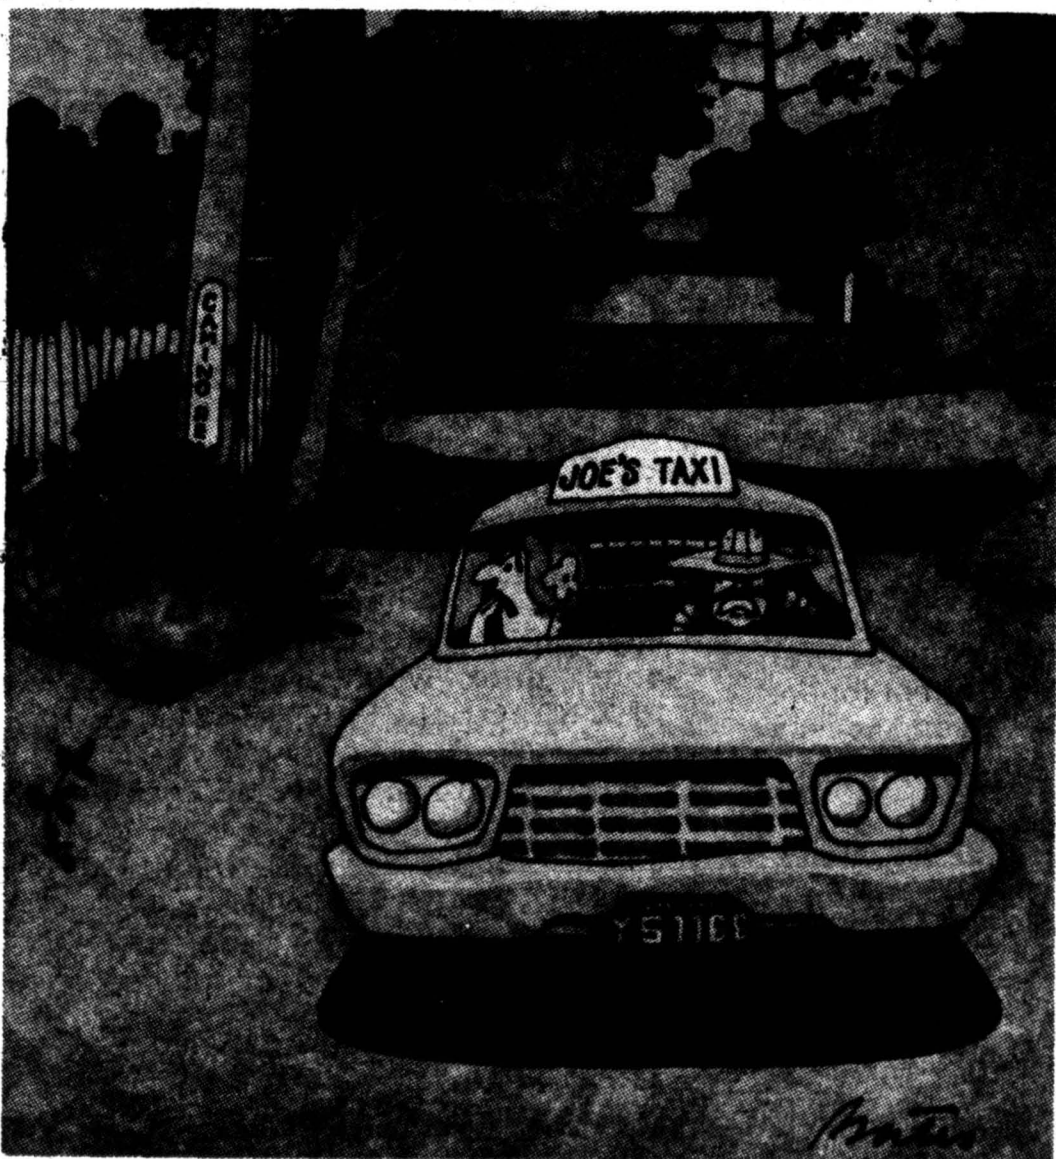

The kitchen, a roomy and convenient "galley," lies behind this. All the appliances are in place and go with the house.

If you go to the right from the top of the stair, you move down a corridor to 2 bedrooms and a sizeable bath. Both bedrooms (we almost said staterooms) open again to the deck and the ocean and forest views.

Downstairs is a 3rd bedroom, guest quarters, and a second bath. There are generous closets and cabinets throughout the house and abundant storage space in the large garage and furnace room.

The house is on two lots (80x100) and is almost 2,000 sq. ft. The architect was Francis Palms, and the house was built in 1961. It has had only one owner, who has taken splendid care of it. The price is $279,500.

CARMEL LEGENDS

No. 40

There are certain sacred cows in the history of Carmel who had long been praised for pioneering the artistic reputation of this extraordinary place. Oddly enough, we find it difficult to express much admiration or reverence for them, and we will probably be roundly criticized for lumping them all together as a pretty irresponsible lot. The ring leader was GEORGE STERLING, a dilettante of the early 1900's, a poet by his own definition, who guided this group of ne'er-do-wells through a series of revelries which would get them jailed today. One of his many buddies was AMBROSE BIERCE, a San Francisco cynic who disappeared, in 1916 or so, in Mexico. Sterling himself committed suicide at the Bohemian Club in 1926. In fact, a number of the so-called Bohemians of Carmel met similarly self-induced ends. It's a puzzlement: they partied, they picnicked, they talked and sang and drank. And they wrote: poems, short stories, plays, novels. Not one of them — STERLING, MARY AUSTIN, JIMMY HOPPER, even SINCLAIR LEWIS was content to live an uninvolved life. They created, they invented, they revolted, they enjoyed the remarkable gift of nature which came to be called "Carmel-by-the-Sea." Disillusioned as most of them came to be, they are the fabric on which this remarkable place is woven. And we'll hear more about them in subsequent legends.
